Twp. denies hall access

Seeks new policy

KEVIN HANRAHAN

Staff Reporter

Was it the case of politics or was it the case of an unavailable key?

Whatever the case, Antioch Township trustees will be looking to devise a policy to allow all organizations — regardless of political affiliation — access to the township hall for meetings.

The issue was raised after the Alliance For Better Government was denied access to the building because Township Supervisor Jim Fields said a key to open the facility would not be available.

"The Alliance For Better Government is a non-partisan organization. We try to help people understand government," said Carolyn Jonites, secretary of the organization.

Jonites further questioned Fields' denial by noting that the Republican Club frequently holds meetings at the township building.

Apparently, the president of the Alliance For Better Government spoke to Fields to schedule a meeting Nov. 8, but Fields said he was going to be out of town and would not make the See POLICY page A10

Antioch veteran's 50th anniversary bittersweet

RHONDA HETRICK BURKE

Editor In Chief

Veterans Day held special significance this November for Antioch's resident Bob Pedersen and a group of World War II veterans who saw a part of their dream go up in smoke this fall.

The Confederate Air Force, a group that restores World War II planes, lost their vintage Martin Marauder, a B-26 bomber used in the European campaign, when it crashed while practicing for a Texas airshow in September. Five crew members were killed in the crash.

Pedersen, a World War II B-26 pilot, had flown the plane two years ago in Texas with pilot and friend Walter Wootton who died in the crash.

"I hadn't flown a B-26 since the war," said Pedersen of the flight. "It was a wonderful experience. The plane was the pride of the Confederate Air Force. Members had worked for years to raise enough money to rebuild the plane." The restoration process had taken over 10 years. It was the only B-26 flying in the world at the time of the crash.

The B-26 was only used in the European campaign and was replaced by the B-29 in the Pacific. Consequently, no planes were returned intact to the United States following the war. They were shipped home in crates.

In September, the Smithsonian Museum opened a display featuring the nose of the "Flak Bait" a restored B-26 bomber which Pedersen flew on two missions. "Flak Bait" survived 202 missions, the most of any bomber in the European campaign. Pedersen and crew member, Keith Korell of Grayslake, were in Washington D.C. for the unveiling of the display and the 50-year-anniversary of the 449th bomb squadron.

Pedersen and Korell flew in the war with armor-gunner Ray Cannon of Cincinnati. They flew 34 missions in various B-26s.

Pedersen loved flying and following the end of the war had considered becoming a commercial pilot but opted instead to buy the family business along with his brother, Al Pedersen. They took the family farm implement business over from their father in 1946.

Pedersen GMC is now celebrating its 60th year and the third generation of Pedersens is actively involved. Joining Al and Bob are Bob's son, Greg, and Al's sons, Al, Dean and Dale.

Bob is semi-retired and winters in Florida with his wife, Eileen, whom he married in 1947.

Sequoit Scorpions are 'best' at Texas science meet

KEVIN HANRAHAN

After six weeks of training, practicing and exercising their brain power, a team of pre-physicists and pre-engineers from Antioch High School finished eighth in the "Boosting Engineering Science and Technology" (BEST) competition held at Texas A&M University last weekend.

Instead of muscle and grit, the BEST event was an academic competition of sorts as Antioch's "Sequoit Scorpion Team" used its brain and knowledge to overcome their opponents in an open arena.

The BEST program requires students to design and assemble a remote-controlled robot to collect noodles on a carpeted floor and deposit them in a scoring area.

Out of 26 high schools from Illinois and Texas competing in the event last weekend, Antioch's eighth-place finish was the best out of the four Lake County schools represented which included Highland Park, Mundelein and a team from the Technology Campus in Grayslake.

"It was like a first-place finish for us because it was our first year competing," said John Kretsos, a physics teacher and advisor to the academic team.

Before the event at Texas A&M University, Antioch finished second in the Chicago regional competition. Only Highland Park finished ahead of Antioch. But the "Sequoit Scorpion Team sought revenge in Texas as Highland Park finished in ninth place behind Antioch.

"It was get-even time with Highland Park," remarked Paul Boardman, physics teacher and advisor.

ACHS actors to present two features

Antioch Community High School will perform a drama double feature this weekend when it presents the family comedy "Cheaper by the Dozen" and the children's show "The Elves and the Shoemaker."

Performances for "Cheaper by the Dozen" are Nov. 17 and 18 at 7:30 p.m. and Nov. 19 at 6:30 p.m. in the high school theater. A special children's matinee of "The Elves and the Shoemaker" will be Nov. 18 at 2 p.m.

A full house of 500 students from Emmons, Grass Lake and Oakland grade schools has already booked a 10:30 a.m. show Friday for "The Elves and the Shoemaker."

More than 50 high school students auditioned for the shows, and 26 have outlasted rigorous rehearsals to put on the two productions.

Leading roles in "Cheaper by the Dozen" include seniors Walter Martins, Lauren Haas, Anthony Tournis, Heather Cramond, Marlene Rodriguez, and Anna Weiler.

Other feature roles include Corie Summers, Tony Forth, Brian Maloney and Theresa Eckard.

Seniors Ajredin Elez and Parker Barnett have lead roles in the "Elves and the Shoemaker." Eckard and Maloney will be pulling double duty as they have small parts in both shows.

Admission prices for "Cheaper by the Dozen" are $3 for adults and $2 for students and senior citizens. The Saturday matinee of "The Elves and the Shoemaker" will be $2 for everyone.

County delays study for township sewers

KEVIN HANRAHAN

Staff Reporter

A Lake County committee postponed a sewer feasibility study for unincorporated Antioch Township to assure township residents will not get a "blue light special" in terms of possible sewer service.

After receiving several bids from several companies to conduct the study, members of the Lake County Public Service Committee recognized a great disparity in price range to complete the study.

"In some cases it may be too expensive to bring sewer to some areas, and some companies did not include alternatives to sewers," said Judy Martini, Lake County board representative for Antioch.

She said a feasibility study should be completed first to determine the costs of extending sewer service to unincorporated Antioch Township. After a study is completed, the county can begin forming the mechanism for forming a special service district for sewer.

"I've heard from both sides that they would like the sewers no matter what the cost, and I've heard people say it will be too expensive for them to pay for sewer," Martini said.

For people who believe it will be too expensive to pay for sewer, that's where alternatives to sewer service fits into the equation, Martini said.

"We want to make sure Antioch does not get the blue light special," Martini said. "We want to make sure it is done right because it will be the only study we're going to have."

Carolyn Jonites, president of United Homeowners Associations of Unincorporated Antioch, said more than 2,000 letters have been generated in support of the study.

"Everywhere I went, this was the most important issue to the people of unincorporated Antioch Township," Jonites said.

Martini said after a study is completed, she will solicit more input from unincorporated residents who support or oppose sewer service.

"I think it will help the area as far as water quality," Martini said.

The Public Service Committee will meet again before the next County Board meeting in December to discuss the feasibility study and possible alternatives to sewers.

Township seeks to help seniors with insurance

KEVIN HANRAHAN

Staff Reporter

Between premiums, deductibles, bills, supplemental insurance, and more paperwork, senior citizens can quickly become overwhelmed by Medicare, Medicaid and private insurance benefits.

Antioch Township officials are entertaining thoughts of offering the Senior Health Insurance Program, better known as SHIP.

"It's designed to have an impartial source explain Medicare benefits to seniors and the mound of forms they have to fill out," explained Trustee Timothy Osmond. "It's no cost to the township and it brings some service to people who need it."

Under the SHIP program, volunteers are trained through the Department of Insurance of the different benefits offered through Medicare and Medicaid as well as private insurance that fills the gaps that Medicare and Medicaid do not cover.

The volunteers explain the differences in insurance, coverage and their costs to seniors through the township. The volunteers usually make themselves available on a need basis.

"I think it would be good for us to do," Osmond said. "I think it is something worth pursuing."

For lack of demand, the SHIP program was just discontinued at Lake Villa Township.

According to Lake Villa Township Supervisor Sue Hanson, SHIP was offered through the township for five years from 1990 until earlier this year. During those five years, there were 22 requests from seniors, Hanson said.

"We didn't have enough activity to keep volunteers busy. The time spent to train volunteers did not offset the demand," Hanson said.

She also noted that many of the questions seniors may have can be answered through their doctors. Many retirement communities also employ a staff person to answer insurance questions as well, Hanson said.

"With the changes in the law, seniors don't have that responsibility anymore because they can fill out the information and claims at the doctor's office," Hanson said.

Lake Villa Township officials now refer seniors to Warren Township where the SHIP program is offered through the senior center there.

"We can still help people with questions because we send them to Warren Township," Hanson said.

Attorney to discuss association issues

Attorney William M. Stroud will be on hand Nov. 21 to discuss homeowner association property issues at the next meeting of the United Homeowners Association of Unincorporated Antioch (UHAUA). Stroud, a Chicago lawyer who plans to open a practice in Antioch, will provide information regarding loss of association property and methods of safeguarding title. The meeting is open to the public and will be held at St. Stephen Church at 7:30 p.m.

An update on UHAUA efforts for a sewer study in Antioch will also be provided.

Antioch to get into the Christmas spirit

Between Santa Claus, a parade and a tree-lighting ceremony, downtown Antioch will be a flurry of activity next weekend as the village kicks off the holiday season.

The festivities will begin with the annual Thanksgiving and Christmas parade, which will begin at 6:30 p.m., Friday. The parade will depart on Lake Street, travel north on Main Street, west on Orchard Street, south on Toft Street and conclude at Santa's Enchanted Castle.

Immediately following the parade, residents and village dignitaries will gather around the Antioch Family Christmas Tree for the official tree-lighting ceremony. The Antioch Community Choir will sing carols. The Antioch Junior Women's Club will offer hot chocolate and cookies. Proceeds benefit the club's scholarship program.

Residents are encouraged to get into the Christmas spirit by helping decorate the family tree outside the village hall. Ornaments should be weather resistant and have the family name on them. Ornaments will be accepted through Nov. 23.

Santa's Enchanted Castle will be open Nov. 24 through Dec. 23 from 5:30 to 8 p.m. on weekdays and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekends.

"It's a chance for children to come and visit Santa, have their pictures taken with Santa and tell Santa what they want for Christmas," said Vivian Tauscheck of the Antioch Chamber of Commerce.

In addition, the Chamber and Community Action Now are sponsoring their third annual window-decorating contest in downtown Antioch as well. The Chamber will reimburse businesses up to $50 for decorating their windows. First, second and third place prizes will be awarded. Judging will take place Nov. 25.

Antioch's home-town Christmas will also include a free showing of "The Pebble and the Penguin" at 11 a.m. Nov. 25 at Antioch Theatre. Entry to the movie is free to each person who donates two or more non-perishable food items to be donated to the Antioch Food Pantry.

Also, PM&L Theatre will give a free performance at 11 a.m. Nov. 25. Admission is free for those who donate two or more non-perishable food items to be donated to the Antioch Food Pantry.

Beginning Nov. 24, carriage rides will be offered every Saturday and Sunday through Dec. 17 from 2 to 4 p.m.

Petty School fund raiser yields computers, limos and cash

KEVIN HANRAHAN

Staff Reporter

Students, teachers and the Parent Teacher Organization at W.C. Petty Elementary School teamed up to help raise funds for new computer software.

During a magazine subscription drive, students raised more than $13,000. Forty percent of the subscription sales are earmarked to purchase computer software.

"This is wonderful," exclaimed Sandy Lavelle, PTO member and coordinator of the magazine drive.

"I'm glad we were able to enhance their education with computers," Lavelle added.

As a special treat to honor those who sold more than 20 subscriptions, four students were given a full minute to collect all the money they could grab from a free-flowing cash machine.

Students taking a swipe at the free cash included fourth-grader Greg Mitchell and fifth-graders Matthew Markus, Lindsay Garrett, and Cortney Garrett.

"The kids get to take the money home with them," Lavelle noted.

In addition, fourth-grade teacher Amy Graesser and fifth-grade teacher Janie Yanca were given a chance at the cash machine as well for having the top magazine subscription sales among students in their classrooms.

"With the money the teachers get, their classes get to choose how they want to spend the money," Lavelle said.

Also, seven students who sold 17 or more magazine subscriptions were awarded an hour-long limousine excursion which included a trip to McDonald's.

Those students taking the limo ride included fourth graders Danny Basler, Loren Baba, and Bonnie Henning, and fifth graders Kim Lavelle, Amanda Bonhivert, Vicky Powell, and Kenny Mateer.

W.C. Petty School fourth- and fifth-graders earned an hourlong trip in a limousine after selling 17 or more magazine subscriptions during a fund raiser which helped raise money for computer equipment. Winners included fourth-graders Danny Basler, Bonnie Henning and Loren Baba, and fifth-graders Kim Lavelle, Amanda Bonhivert, Vicky Powell, and Kenny Mateer. Sandy Lavelle was the PTO coordinator behind the fund-raiser.

After departing the squad, police smelled burnt cannabis in the air and asked Marolis to explain what he was holding. Marolis said he had a "pipe" and a "bag of weed" in his pocket. After a body search, police found a plastic bag containing 9 to 10 grams of cannabis. Marolis said he was going to a friend's house to "smoke weed." # Those little campers have been at it all month

There has been an awful lot of cuter than usual things going at the Camp Crayon these days. First, there was the day that little Veronica Leonard scooted off her rug mat, unbeknownst to herself. When she noticed the empty mat sitting next to her, she turned to Miss Liz and tattled: "someone is off their mat." Miss Liz gently corrected her by saying, "I think that someone is you, Veronica." Little Veronica glanced under herself, turned a bit pink in the face and quickly plopped her tiny bottom back on the uninhabited mat. Bet Ms. Veronica double checks before she starts tattling again.

Then there was the day after snack time when Miss Liz started pushing the tables aside for dance time. For some unknown reason (other than perhaps old age), she totally overlooked little Alec Paramski as he sat finishing his snack at one table. With each given push of the table by Miss Liz, poor Alec scooted his chair to catch back up to the table holding his snack, only to be greeted by another push, followed by another scoot, and so on, and so on, until the teacher finally saw the young child and realized what that anguished look meant. Nice going teach, give the kid a treat and then make him work double time for it.

Then one day during the Pledge of Allegiance, Chase Zelinski stood with his left hand over his heart. Miss Liz always taps each child who has assumed the correct position. If they are holding up the wrong hand, Miss Liz pauses above the child's head with her hand, which means change hands, and usually the child quickly complies. But Chase was unfamiliar with this signal and made no move to change hands. Miss Liz gently tried to nudge him along by saying, "Chase, try the other one (meaning, of course, the other hand), to which Chase then quickly moved his left hand over to the other side of his chest, trying his other heart instead of his other hand. You have to admire their innocence, their patience, and the overwhelming tolerance of us adults.

The results are in

For anyone out there who is in need of some worthwhile reading material, Mr. Beveridge, the superintendent/principal at Grass Lake School, has just the book for you. The results of the survey put out by the Goals and Objectives Committee have been tabulated and charted for your review. Actually, the results make for some pretty interesting reading. I won't sway your opinion, but it seems the worst complaint among the students was about the food served in the cafeteria. Us moms love the rather unappetizing food served in our school lunchrooms—it makes our Tuna Helper look good!

Mr. Beveridge invites all those who participated in the survey to stop by, bring a copy home, and browse through it. Even if you didn't fill out the questionnaire, you are more than welcome to pick up a copy of the results. So, if you are interested in seeing what the public thinks of your school, stop in and talk to Mr. Beveridge, he always loves the chance to talk about his school.

Man's best friend

Just about every seven-year-old child wants a dog. I was no different. I begged my mom unmercifully for one of those lovable creatures and she stood her ground for several years. Finally, she consented and we acquired Becky-dog. My promises of feeding, walking, brushing, and training lasted about two hours and the responsibility then rested on good old mom's shoulders. After 10 years, Becky-dog met her maker and the cries again went out for another dog. Once again, mom argued about dog hair, vacations, and muddy paws, but found herself no match for my determination and relentless whining. Brandy became our new tail-wagging addition.

As a wedding present, mom gladly wrapped up Brandy and his doggy dish and presented him to Neal and I. Brandy had to be put to sleep about two years ago and now my girls are hounding me for a dog. I, like my mom before me, want no part of another dog. I hear mom's voice coming from my lips: "What about when we go on vacation, who's going to feed it, and who's going to clean up all that dog stuff?" I have now come to realize the torture and agony I put my mom through. I vow to be stronger than her and not give in to those empty promises of general dog nurturing emitting from my daughters.

I now know who will be the one maintaining the little furball—I've been there before, only on the other side of the fence. Recently, The Old Retired Lizard's dog passed on and Pat Bletsch sent her the following tribute. She found it comforting and asked me to share it with you. It's called "The Rainbow Bridge."

"There is a bridge connecting heaven and earth. It is called the Rainbow Bridge because of its many colors. Just this side of the Rainbow Bridge there is a land of meadows, hills and valleys with lush green grass. When a beloved pet dies, the pet goes to this place. There is always food, water, and warm spring weather. The old and frail animals are young again, those who are maimed are made whole again. They play all day with each other, but there is only one thing missing: they are not with their special person who loved them on earth.

"So, each day they run and play until the day comes when one suddenly stops playing and looks up. The nose twitches, the ears stand up, the eyes stare, and this one suddenly runs from the group. You have been seen, and when you and your special friend meet, you take him or her in your arms and embrace. Your face is kissed again and again and again, and you look once more into the eyes of your trusting pet. Then you cross the Rainbow Bridge together, never again to be separated."

After I finished reading this, I pictured my two dogs frolicking through lush green fields, anticipating my arrival. Although there is nothing amusing about death, I found myself chuckling to myself as I visualized the look on my mom's face after she died. I'm sure she looked up to the heavens expecting to see angels or perhaps St. Peter; instead, she was greeted with the sight of Becky and Brandy standing with recognition in their eyes, wagging tails, and dirty paws.

I can just imagine my mom rolling her eyes and muttering under her breath as she trudged along on her journey toward the Pearly White Gates with my two mutts tagging along behind her—for eternity! Seeing as I haven't been struck by lightning, it's nice to know mom still has her sense of humor. Take care of those beasts, mom—I know how you feel! And so goes another "Jingle from Pringle." Don't forget to call 395-6364.

Jaycees look forward to Christmas causes

After a successful Halloween Howl, the Antioch Jaycees are looking forward to its upcoming Santa Phone and Christmas Wishes program next month.

Jaycees President Brian Stoddard reported the Jaycees raised nearly $500 through concession sales at the Witches Kitchen and the glow-bracelet sales during the Halloween Howl in downtown Antioch.

"It was a successful event. Last year, we raised about $300," Stoddard noted.

Proceeds benefit do-good causes sponsored by the Jaycees.

Next month, Jaycees members will be serving as Santa's helpers by calling area children and going over their Christmas wish lists as part of the "Santa's Phone" program.

In addition, the Jaycees will team up with the State Bank of the Lakes, First National Bank of Antioch and First Chicago, local schools and the Antioch Chamber of Commerce as part of the "Christmas Wishes" drive for underprivileged children.

Residents will be able to pick names from trees stationed at each of the three banks. With each card is a child's name and his or her Christmas wishes. Residents buy the gifts and return them to the banks. Jaycees volunteers will then deliver the gifts the week before Christmas.

"I've delivered presents, and many times, they are the only presents the kids are getting," said Donna Bergl, Jaycees secretary. "It's a great feeling going to the door to deliver the gifts and getting a big hug."

In other Jaycees business, members welcomed two new members to the growing organization. The Antioch Jaycees now have 27 members.

The North Region, which includes Jaycees chapters in Lake and northern Cook counties, recognized the Antioch Jaycees as the "Outstanding Chapter for September" and the "Outstanding Chapter for the Second Quarter."

Stoddard was recognized as the "Outstanding President" in the North region for the month of September.

The Antioch chapter was also honored for the "Outstanding Community Development Project." During the third annual "Bill Brook Bike-A-Thon" held in September, the Antioch Jaycees raised more than $7,000 for the American Cancer Society.

The Antioch Jaycees also honored its own members for "Outstanding Service" including Joel Johnson, Teri Chipman, and Kevin Hanrahan.

Red Cross includes all for Christmas

ELIZABETH EAKEN
Staff Reporter

Visions of sugarplums will soon be dancing in many children's heads but a real fact for many local children is a slim Christmas when it comes to presents under the tree.

Believe it or not, Christmas is right around the corner and the Mid-America Chapter of the American Red Cross is gearing up for its Christmas Stocking Project.

The Chapter, located in Mundelein, serves all of Lake County. The local chapter has been donating Christmas stockings to needy children in Lake County since Oct. of 1985. The project is totally self supporting and relies solely on donations and volunteers to get the job done.

Last year, the group distributed 2,410 stockings and this year hopes to top that with a projected goal of 2,500. A long way from the 267 they produced the first year.

Last year's project coordinator, Jackie Kalms was very touched by the project.

"The ultimate moment is when the stockings are handed out to the children," Kalms expressed. "The joy emanating from their faces makes all of the effort and months of preparation dissolve into oblivion. Nothing exists but the joy of giving and receiving. The sad reality for many of these children is the stockings are the only gifts they will receive."

According to Chapter Director Carmen Solarte the project takes nearly 3,000 volunteers to complete.

"Even though we distributed over 2,400 stockings last year there were still children we were unable to reach," Solarte said. "This is such a beautiful program it brings together young and old to work on the project."

The stockings are sewn, decorated and stuffed by the volunteers. Many organizations and corporations in the area donate fabric, items for stuffing stockings and employee volunteers to help with the actual stuffing of the stockings. The entire project is completed by Dec. 16 and the stockings are then distributed to the proper groups who give them to the children.

The stockings are given to children from birth to fifteen years old. Many of the referrals come to the Red Cross from social service agencies, township officials and Catholic Charities.

"Many agencies send orders with the age and needs of the children," Solarte explained. "One example of how this happens is the Rotary Club of Fox Lake. The Township Supervisor gives them the children's names, which they provide to us so we know what the age and needs of the children are. Then they throw a party every year and give the stockings out."

Solarte said many items are needed to put in the stockings.

Some of the many groups receiving stockings include Glenkirk in Mundelein, Arden Shores in Lake Bluff, Allendale in Lake Villa, Round Lake Heights Head Start, the Salvation Army and many others.

The Red Cross is still in need of volunteers for all areas of the project. If you are interested call Carmen Solarte at 949-1000.

Angel ball will benefit NICASA

"The Angel Ball," a fund raising holiday dinner dance hosted by the Women's Board of Northern Illinois Council on Alcoholism and Substance Abuse (NICASA), will be Dec. 2 at Chicago Botanic Gardens, Glencoe.

Co-chairs of the third annual event are Cindy Simmons and Denise Bickers.

Nancy Magee, president of the women's board, said the event will honor Charles and Teresa Bartels, owners of Manpower Temporary Services of Northeastern Illinois. The Bartels will be presented the James S. Kemper, Jr. Humanitarian Award in recognition of their outstanding efforts on behalf of others.

"Our award focuses on individuals who help NICASA fight substance abuse," Magee said. "The Bartels have been supporters of our agency for many years. They have contributed in so many other positive ways in our community." She said they are highly regarded for their leadership roles at United Way and a variety of social service agencies.

The first James S. Kemper, Jr. Humanitarian Award was presented to its namesake in recognition of his pioneering work in the development of alcohol-rehabilitation programs for employees and for his longtime support of NICASA.

Last year's recipient was Rear Admiral Mack C. Gaston, who recently retired as commander of the Great Lakes Naval Training Center. Gaston was honored for his support of prevention programs at Great Lakes and in the entire Lake County community, especially with youth groups. He is a member of NICASA's board of directors and fighting back's executive council.

Magee said "The Angel Ball" was selected as the name for the holiday dinner dance because, NICASA's role in our communities is like a guardian angel to people who need help."

The event will begin with a reception from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., followed by a program at 7:30 p.m. and a dinner and dance from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the programs and services of NICASA. To make a donation or purchase tickets, or for more information about "The Angel Ball," call 546-6450.

Geo-Karis bill aids Illinois adoptions

Under legislation approved by the General Assembly Friday adoption agencies will be prohibited from discriminating against any child or prospective parent on the basis of race, said State Sen. Adeline Geo-Karis (R-Zion).

"This was a bi-partisan initiative designed in the best interest of adoptive parents and children waiting to be adopted," said Geo-Karis. "There are too many children waiting to be adopted for the process to be delayed just because of a racial difference."

House sponsors Rep. Al Salvi (R-Wauconda) and Mary Flowers (D-Chicago) accepted the governor's amendatory veto and the General Assembly approved the revised measure. Under the new version of the bill, the Dept. of Children and Family Services shall make an effort to place a child with a family of similar racial or ethnic background.

The legislation, also requires DCFS to establish a placement plan for children that includes:

- A plan for recruiting minority adoptive and foster families
- A plan for training adoptive and foster families of minority children
- A plan for employing minority social workers in adoption and foster care
- A plan to ensure that foster care workers attend cultural diversity and trans-racial adoption training.

VFW brings Christmas to hospitalized vets

VFW, Fifth District, Dept. of Illinois sponsors Operation Christmas Cheer to the veterans in the North Chicago VA Medical Center and the Great Lakes Naval Hospital. Several VFW/Auxiliary volunteers and the Miss America scholarship pageant participants will visit the hospitalized veterans.

VFW, Fifth District, Dept. of Illinois started operation Christmas Cheer in 1967 as a Christmas party at the U.S. Naval Hospital, Great Lakes to honor Vietnam Veterans. The VA Hospital of North Chicago was included in 1977. Today Operation Christmas Cheer is a full blown Christmas program which includes an old fashioned USO-style show performed to Navy recruits at Recruit Training Command (RTC), Great Lakes. The show includes talent from various Miss America scholarship queens, the Elks Band which has played the last 23 years at the show, the RTC Color Guard, RTC Choir, a magic act, rock group, barbershop group and more.

The show is taped and edited and sent to several VA hospitals, the world-wide Armed Forces Radio and Television Service, and many local cable and network TV stations. Last year's program reached four million veterans and military personnel through the efforts and support of the entire Fifth District and supportive citizens, businesses and organizations.

This marks 28 years consecutive that the Fifth District VFW has endorsed this program. Operation Christmas Cheer needs everyone's support to keep the program afloat. For monetary donations, call Ken Hauser at 304-8343 or Duane Dewsbury at 266-1370, ext. 119 or send donations to the following: VFW Fifth District Quartermaster, Operation Christmas Cheer, 1077 Levonshire Ct., Highland Park, IL 60035.

Needed is new or used (but in good condition) winter clothing of all types. Winter coats, sleeping bags, sweaters, sweat pants, gloves, hats and ear muffs will be donated to Lake County PADS and other local charities. ## Concerned Crane writes Dole on tax cuts

Eighth Dist. Congressman Philip M. Crane has written to Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole that he is concerned with public statements that Senator Dole and other Senate Republicans have made regarding tax cuts for the American people. Thirty-nine other House Republican members signed the Crane letter.

The Illinois lawmaker pointed out that families in America bear an historically high tax burden which was increased dramatically two years ago when a Democrat Congress passed and President Clinton signed the largest tax increase in history.

Senator Dole was reminded that Republicans "promised to provide tax relief from these Democrat tax increases for the families we represent, and we owe it to the American people to fulfill this promise."

The Crane letter declared that the House Republicans expect the Senate to approve a budget that cuts taxes by $245 billion, a figure which Senator Dole and his Senate colleagues agreed to in passing the budget resolution.

According to Congressman Crane, "We owe the American people the opportunity to keep more of what they earn. If we are to have any credibility with Americans on the other major issues before Congress, we must deliver meaningful tax relief now."

A chance to share in tea and sweets will be offered following the one-woman Emily Dickinson play to be offered on Sundays at 2 p.m. at Park Avenue Antique Mall in Antioch through December. Brenda Case, proprietor of the mall, pours a cup of tea with 19th century antiques serving as the background for the Dickinson play.

Dickinson comes alive at Park Ave. Antiques

KEVIN HANRAHAN
Staff Reporter

Emily Dickinson will come alive for six more weeks as a Chicago actor performs "The Belle of Amherst" at Park Avenue Antiques & Shoppes in Antioch.

Susan McNicka of the Chicago Actor's Guild performs the one-woman play as she delicately explores Dickinson's life at various stages from age 15 to 50.

The 19th-century poet was noted for living a quiet life filled with family routine and household chores. She let her imagination soar as she played the piano, baked bread, cultivated flowers and walked her dog.

"She explains everything about her life on the homestead, and she recites Dickinson's poetry," said Brenda Case, owner of Park Avenue Antiques. "She really has a great rapport with the audience. While she is performing, she is talking and speaking right to the audience."

McNicka's daughter, Erin, also plays the flute for background music.

Surrounded by ageless and priceless antiques, Park Avenue Antiques proves to be an ideal setting to re-tell the life of Dickinson. The audience sits around antique tables and chairs while watching the play.

"The play blends well with the antiques because it blends well with the environment back in the 1800s," Case said. "I think it is a shame to keep this a secret because it's a fine cultural experience."

Following the 45-minute play, there will be a high tea, finger sandwiches and assorted sweets. McNicka is also expected to share Dickinson's famous "19-egg" cake which she bakes during the play.

"It's a great opportunity to take a break from holiday shopping, watch a wonderful play and share some tea among friends," Case said. "It's a wonderful experience for the holiday season."

She said she may plan future one-person plays, small musicals and other cultural events at her antique shop in downtown Antioch.

"We've been in existence for five years, and we're really developing into a cultural center," Case said.

The play begins at 2 p.m. on Sunday afternoons and will continue through November and December. Price is $12. For reserved seating, call 838-1624.

ACHS celebrates team effort

As Antioch Community High School celebrated "American Education Week" this week, school officials wanted to say thanks to those working outside the classrooms for making education a success.

"With increasing demands for a higher quality of education in the public school system and decreasing state aid, it has become the responsibility of the entire community to assist in the education of today's youth," said Dr. Susan Mullendore, ACHS principal.

In relation to that point, "Educating Everyone Takes Everyone" was the theme at ACHS during American Education Week, which concluded Friday.

And two volunteer programs in particular epitomize that theme.

Sequoit Pride, a parent support organization at ACHS, donates needed equipment and supplies by sponsoring fund-raisers and running the school's spirit shop and concession stands.

ACHS Superintendent Dennis Hockney has praised the efforts of Sequoit Pride.

"There are many adults dedicated to helping Antioch Community High School, and it's wonderful to see that it's not just parents of students who are becoming involved," Hockney said.

He added, "We have many areas where people can donate time, and we need more people in the community to step forward in order for us to become the best high school in the area."

In another program which started this year, parent volunteers assisted with Science Alliance Day.

Parents greeted grade-school children visiting the school and introduced them to the computers in the learning center and library.

Ball field negotiations in final stretch

Only a few issues remain to pave the way for the long-awaited baseball fields in the Sun Lake Forest Preserve.

Lake Villa Village Attorney John Mullen said the village may have the needed revisions in the intergovernmental agreement with the Lake County Forest Preserve in time for the meeting next week. The board didn't close the meeting in hopes revisions would be ready for the vote.

"We have been waiting so long, I don't want them to have to wait on us," said Mayor Frank Loffredo.

One of the concerns of the board is to ensure only the Lake Villa Township Baseball League uses the 14-acre site.

Mullen said this issue can be addressed if the Forest Preserve is willing to agree to no other recreational uses on the site other than what is stipulated in the intergovernmental agreement.

Another issue was the village having to comply with a license and easement agreement. The Forest Preserve requires those who lease property to pay for many easements, something the village wants to avoid, according to Mullen.

Mullen suggested the intergovernmental agreement applying rather than this ordinance.

The village has worked to get the baseball site for two years. The original document ceding the Sun Lake Forest Preserve had a provision stating the ball fields could be developed on the site.

Loffredo said if the village and the Forest Preserve act decisively, the issue could go before the County Board for approval in December.

A meeting about a month ago between representatives of both sides worked out many of the disagreements.

If approval is given, the baseball association will kick in a five-year plan to have three to four fields on the site. The association has 700 players from Lake Villa, Antioch, Grant and Warren townships.

football and basketball teams. It's about time we get more attention to academic competition," Kretsos pointed out. "Hopefully, interest will grow and we'll be able to get some corporate sponsorship."

Each participating BEST team in Illinois and Texas received a batch of identical parts and had six weeks to construct their vehicle before the regional and inter-state competitions.

"It was a huge investment of time, and it was labor intensive," Boardman said.

The Antioch team first worked three nights a week for two to three hours a night. As the competitions became closer, the team was working five nights a week.

"It was an opportunity for competition, team work and learning in an academic environment," Kretsos said. "We're already talking about what we can do better for next year, plus it gets people interested in science and technology."

Collision kills Spring Grove driver

A Spring Grove man was pronounced dead at Northern Illinois Medical Center in McHenry after he swerved into the opposite lane and collided into another vehicle on Route 173 and Lake Avenue just west of Antioch Monday night.

Dean Wanders, 48, of Spring Grove was pronounced dead. James Nowdomski, 59, of Chicago was flown by helicopter to John Doyne Medical Center in Milwaukee where his condition was listed as extremely critical in an intensive care unit.

According to the Lake County Sheriff's Department, Wanders was traveling eastbound on Rte. 173 in a 1985 Chrysler Laser when he entered a curve and crossed the centerline. He struck Nowdomski, who was traveling westbound in a 1993 Oldsmobile Delta.

Captain Stan Iwan of the Sheriff's Department said a witness saw Wanders stray into the opposite lane.

"It could have been that his speed was too great," Iwan said. "Our investigators are investigating to see if speed was a factor."

No other people were injured in the accident, but Iwan said

Nowdomski probably suffered severe internal injuries as a result of the two-car collision.

"We are still waiting for a blood sample from Northern Illinois Medical Center to see if alcohol was involved in the accident," Iwan said.

The accident occurred around 8:20 p.m. Deputies temporarily blocked off local traffic on Rte. 173 near the accident scene.

"You've always got to be watchful of other cars crossing into your lane," Iwan noted. "People should practice defensive driving."

Members of the Antioch High School Boosting Engineering Science and Technology team, "Sequoia Scorpion," finished second in the Chicago regional competition and eighth in the Texas and Illinois competition. Members include: Ryan Smith, a junior; Fred Fettingler, a freshman; Austin McElroy, a freshman; Ed Plese, a freshman; Eric Green, a freshman; Matt Fleming, a senior; Jason Bolton, a senior; Tom Bellzel, a junior; and Clint Busch, a junior. Jonites said the excuse was "bogus" because Township Assessor Clifton Houghton was going to be one of the speakers at the Alliance For Better Government meeting and he was not given a key to open the doors.

She said Fields' intention for not making the key available smelled political, but Fields was still out of town and could not be reached for comment.

The village, however, allowed the organization to meet. "The village was very accommodating," Jonites told township trustees.

Township Trustee Tim Osmond said the board will be devising a new meeting policy for groups.

"Let's face it. Other organizations use the building, and this organization was not allowed to use it for some reason or another," Osmond said. "We have to address that. It's my opinion that the building needs to be available for anyone who wants to use it."

He added, "We have to look into our policy so it does have equal access to everybody. I think we need to realize that this building is owned by the taxpayers, and it's for the use of the taxpayers."

The township will be checking with other townships to learn what type of policies they have for group meetings. Osmond said a statement policy of sorts will have to address pre-authorization and a time deadline to request use of the building.

"I feel ashamed this happened," said Trustee Claudette Skvarce. "It was wrong."

—LETTER TO THE EDITOR—

Applauding today's youth

Editor:

On Oct. 29, the National Honor Society at Antioch Community High School inducted 81 members. The ceremony was impressive, recognizing the achievements of the students not only academically but also because of their service, leadership and character.

So often the public hears of the apathy of youth, yet during the ceremony it was announced that 5,800 service hours have been contributed by members of the National Honor Society at Antioch Community High School over the past three years and they anticipate adding another 2400 hours during the 1995-96 school year. The National Honor Society at Antioch Community High School not only talks about service to the community, it turns actions into words.

The next time someone speaks in a negative tone about the youth of America, let them know that members of the National Honor Society at Antioch Community High School are of high character, have high academic achievement, are leaders in both their school and community, and give tirelessly of themselves through service to their community.

Defense, speed key Lady Sequoits hoops

KEVIN HANRAHAN

Staff Reporter

If the first game is any indicator, the Antioch girls basketball team looks to be a quick and strong defensive unit.

The Lady Sequoits dominated Grant 51-23 in the season opener. Carrie Gofron led the scoring with 15 points, followed by Dana Pierson with 8 points and Jocelyn McRae with 6 points. Pierson and Erin O'Connell controlled the boards.

"We created 33 turnovers and scored a lot of points off of our defense," noted Coach Dave Woods. "For the first game I was pleased with what we did, and we recognized some areas where we need to work on."

With 33 turnovers, Antioch stands to create its own scoring opportunities and limit the offense of their opponents.

"We're not going to be a big team, but we will have a lot of quickness. How we utilize that speed and quickness will determine how well we do," Woods said.

Returning to the starting lineup are seniors O'Connell and Pierson as forwards. Gofron, a junior, stands to be the point-maker and leading defender. Mary Ipsen, a senior, will silently create havoc at her guard position.

"Mary does a lot of things that don't show up in the scorebook," Woods pointed out.

Orchestrating the offense will be Lisa Ipsen, a sophomore, at point guard.

"She's probably one of the quickest point guards in the conference," Woods said. "Being a sophomore, there may be some pressure to lead the offense, but I think she can handle it."

McRae, a sophomore, will serve as a back-up guard, and the versatile Jeanna Miller, a junior, will provide strong play from the bench. Nicole Langley, another sophomore, will also be asked to step into the forward position.

"One of the keys for us will be to protect the basketball and reduce the number of turnovers we gave up last year," Woods said. "We don't want to give the other team the opportunity to score."

Stevenson is the early pick in the North Suburban Conference, but Antioch, Libertyville, Lake Forest, and Warren stand to be vying for the other top spots in the standings.

"I'm excited about this group. There's a nice blend of senior leadership and good kids coming up," Woods said. "It will be a fun year. Our goal is just steady improvement. Obviously, we'd like to move up one more step and get that regional title."

Soph wrestlers to key early tests for Antioch

KEVIN HANRAHAN

Staff Reporter

Although Antioch lost five veteran grapplers, wrestling Coach Ted Sieckowski believes he has the ingredients to build a respectable team and be competitive this season.

To his advantage, the coach has a solid corps of returning seniors with Luke Dyer at 140 pounds, Matt Hlinak at 119, James Patterson at 145-152, and Jason Breen at 160.

"Luke Dyer and Matt Hlinak do a heck of a job with team leadership, and Jason Breen is pretty motivated," Sieckowski said. "They lead by example."

At 140 pounds, Dyer, who has enjoyed a dominating reign at 103 pounds the last three years, finds himself in a new and larger weight class.

"He was due to sprout," Sieckowski noted. "It's going to be interesting for him wrestling the bigger weights, but he is driven. He'll find his niche."

The unconventional Hlinak is the fun one to watch.

"He has an uncanny way of winning matches," Sieckowski said. "His style makes it difficult for fundamentally strong wrestlers to figure him out."

The coach also has his eyes set on a number of up-and-coming grapplers who might find themselves in the regular starting rotation.

"We are looking to fill some weight classes with some sophomores. Competition is a good thing in the room," Sieckowski said.

There could be some intra-squad dog fights in the heavy weight classes. Tim Cizanskas will be looking to defend his ground against sophomores Eric Vos and Kyle Wisniewski at the 171 and 189 positions, while Justin Triplett, a sophomore, takes on senior Matt Henkel for the heavy-weight spot.

"He's going to be a heck of a heavyweight," Sieckowski said of Triplett, who wrestled some varsity matches last year as a freshman. "Right now, he's in that in-between weight."

In the middle weights from 125 to 140 a number of prospects could shine including sophomores Joe Brandimore, Jeff Ultez and Mike Bardzinski. Jeremy Helpon, a senior, is likely to win a slot.

"They always leave practice tired, which is a true measure of an effective practice," Sieckowski noted. "I would speculate that we will be respectable at dam near every weight class. It's too early to tell how powerful we can be."

Antioch may have to rise to that challenge early as the Sequoits confront conference nemesis Libertyville Dec. 1 for their first match.

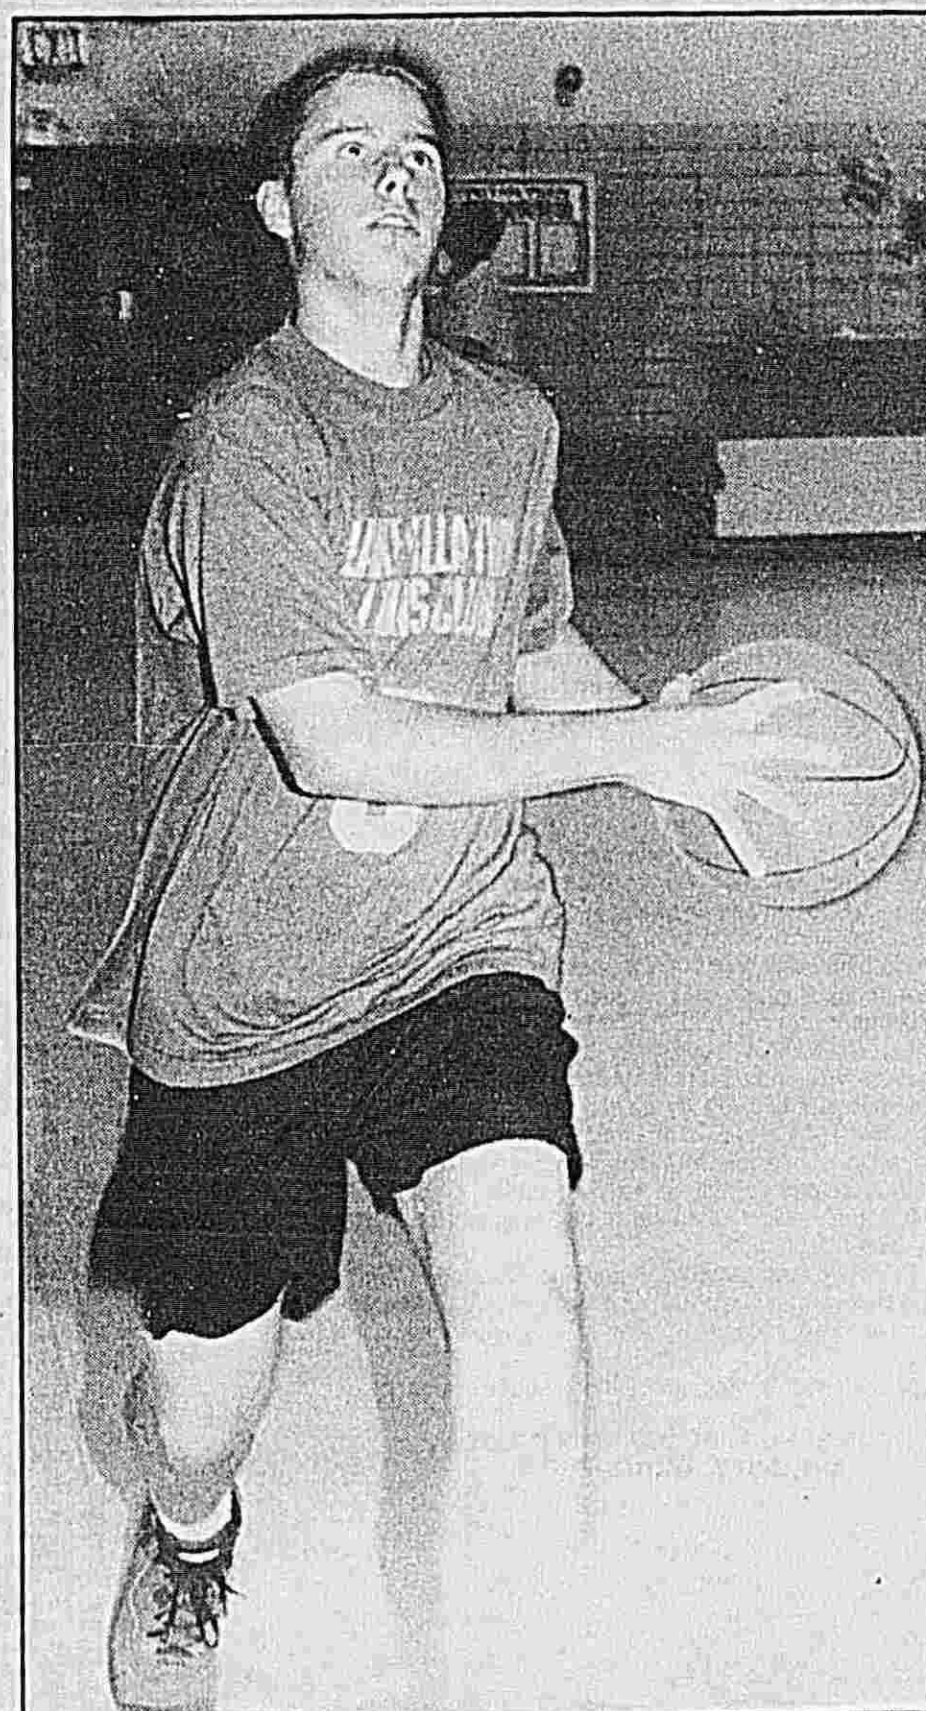

"One advantage is we have Libertyville early. We might have a chance of catching them before they get better as the year goes on," Sieckowski said.

Warren, Stevenson and Lake Forest are expected to be conference challengers as well and Mundelein and Zion-Benton have improved teams.

"I think there is quite a bit of parity in our conference," Sieckowski said.

The intra-squad wrestle-offs are tentatively scheduled the week after Thanksgiving, before the Libertyville match.

In any respect, Sieckowski believes, "We'll be exciting to watch."

Lindenhurst Boltz finish season with shutout

The Lindenhurst Boltz (Boys U-11) soccer team ended its fall season with a 1-0 victory over the St. Charles Flames.

The Boltz defense, which has been the team's cornerstone all season, recorded its fourth shutout in five games. Goalkeeper Sean Trulzsch was solid, stopping all six of the Flames' shots. Midfield pressure from Rod Janke, Kevin Mark, Michael Persman and Colin Revell kept the Boltz on the attack throughout the first half.

The Boltz goal came midway through the first period when Mark Belanger made a well-placed cross to the onrushing Brent Schnirer, who finished with a hard shot past the Flames' goalkeeper. The Boltz maintained the shutout in the second half by controlling the ball with skillful passing and good movement of the ball.

Also contributing to the victory were Brian Blanas, David Boston, Brad Hoogerhyde, Ryan Myers, Nate Rimkus, Ryan Schuster and Ted Zalewski.

The Boltz finished the season tied for second in the Red Division of the Northern Illinois Soccer league.

KEVIN HANRAHAN

For Round Lake's Nenad Brakocevic, a trip to Greece representing Team USA in an international karate competition was like a family reunion.

The 18-year-old was one of about 90 karate specialists—nine from Lake County—from across the country to represent the U.S. in the Mediterranean Games in Greece last month. The American contingent competed against karate experts from Greece, Bulgaria and England.

As a black belt competing in the junior division of USA's Team 2, Brakocevic won second place in Bo Kata (sparring). He said the biggest challenge occurred when Team USA held its team trials in the streets of Athens, Greece, prior to the international competition. He did not qualify for Team 1, but was happy to compete with Team 2.

"It was hard fighting to see who would compete in the tournament," said Brakocevic, who won three of five matches in the streets.

More so than the competition, Brakocevic had the opportunity to spend time with his mother, father, and brother, who he left in the former Yugoslavia before coming to the United States. All three traveled from Belgrade, Serbia, to see Brakocevic compete in Greece.

His mother, Branka, and brother, Veljko, visited Nenad in Round Lake last summer, but he has not seen his father, Slobodan, in three years.

"It was great," Brakocevic said of seeing his father. "We had a lot of things to talk about. Everybody liked my dad. Even though he can't speak English, he was able to talk with them."

When Team USA had the opportunity to visit the sights of Greece, Brakocevic was able to share his insights. Before coming to the U.S., Brakocevic and his family vacationed in Greece. It was also helpful that his father spoke Greek.

"I was able to tell some of the people on the bus where I used to go camping and go to the beaches," said Brakocevic, who still speaks with a strong accent.

Since emigrating to the United States in 1992, Brakocevic has been living with his grandparents, Jelenko and Selenia Jevremovic, in Round Lake.

"My grandparents have been really supportive of my trips," Brakocevic said. "They're my sponsors."

Upon his return to the states, Brakocevic immediately competed in two more karate tournaments.

At the 10th annual Illinois State Karate Championships, Brakocevic earned a fourth place in Bo Kata and open-hand sparring in the black belt division.

"When we got home Friday, I went to another tournament on Sunday," Brakocevic said.

At the All-American Youth Championship in Springfield, Brakocevic won a silver in Bo Kata and a gold in Kata.

In the meantime, Brakocevic is attending the College of Lake County and studying physical education with the hopes of being a karate coach someday. He is currently training and working as an instructor at USA Karate in Mundelein.

He also looks forward to returning to his homeland this Christmas to visit his family.

"I have plans to visit my family in Yugoslavia when I finish my first semester at CLC," Brakocevic said.

County breaks ground for new juvenile jail

KEVIN HANRAHAN
Staff Reporter

With an eye toward the future, Lake County officials gather Nov. 17 to break ground for the new Lake County juvenile detention and courts facility.

The county purchased the 15.8-acre site and facilities tucked away along the Des Plaines River for $3.1 million. The site is situated between Lincolnshire and Vernon Hills. Officials said the county will spend an additional $3 million to upgrade the facility and to build an additional wing for a 48-bed juvenile detention jail.

The 18-bed Hulse Juvenile Detention Center in Waukegan has become too small to incarcerate the growing number of juvenile offenders. A year ago, voters rejected an $8-million referendum package to build a new facility.

"We were forced to determine what to do with an antiquated situation that only houses 18 kids," said David Stolman, a board commissioner from Buffalo Grove who pinpointed the available site in Lincolnshire.

He added, "We had to come up with a solution, and this project is tailor-made to address that issue."

Oftentimes, the county was forced to pay for juvenile offenders to be jailed outside the county. With the new facility, officials hope to collect additional revenue to jail juvenile offenders from outside the county.

Currently, the new facility has four separate wings. One wing will house two courtrooms and offices for judges, the district attorney and the public defender.

Another wing will be devoted to juvenile services such as classrooms and medical needs. A third wing contains 16 beds and will be the new home of the Women's Residential Services (WRS) program, which provides support for mothers who have drug or alcohol problems. Use of a fourth wing is yet to be determined. The fourth wing to be added onto the facility will contain the 48-bed juvenile detention center.

"The whole plan was contemplated so the whole area would be secure. It will be set off from the main thoroughfare. Except for a sign along Milwaukee Avenue, people won't even know it is there," Stolman noted.

Although there are no immediate plans to build a traffic court facility to facilitate law enforcement officials in southern Lake County, there is room for expansion. A separate committee is investigating other options for a separate traffic court facility in southern Lake County.

Experts struggle to find natural deer balance

RHONDA HETRICK BURKE
Editor In Chief

The site of a white-tail deer waltzing across an open prairie may be the perfect vision for a holiday greeting card, but in suburbia it is often an unwelcome site.

With the deer population rising in the collar counties, deer/car accidents and landscape damage to property are becoming more frequent problems.

The situation galvanizes wildlife experts, village officials and residents on the problem of deer management. The question is how to deal with the increasing impact of people on wildlife.

Perhaps one of the most controversial aspects of deer management is the use of a declared sportsman hunting season to thin the population. Experts line up on both sides of the fence on the issue, some saying the thinning naturally causes the herd to reproduce at greater rates and others believing it is effective in limiting the population.

The crux of the issue is defining animal cruelty. Those who favor culling the herd believe it creates a more viable habitat for

A wounded deer with an arrow piercing its side was seen in Riverwoods. Gangrene had set in around the deer's wounds.

there were 10-20 years ago."

The white-tail deer was nearly extinct at the turn of the century throughout the continental United States. The population throughout Northern America is now estimated at more than 20 million.

November is the month in which the greatest number of MacArthur Woods, Wright/Lloyd's and Ryerson.

The 1995 counts for deer were: MacArthur— 27; Wright/Lloyd's— 27 and Ryerson— 44. Deer were removed only from Ryerson in 1995. The number removed was 22. Comparatively, in 1994, deer totals were: MacArthur— 17; Wright/Lloyd's— 30; and Ryerson— 29. Deer were only removed from Wright/Lloyd for 1994. The number removed was 15.

"We have not done our counts for this year, yet," said Andy Kimmel, director of environmental education and public affairs for the Lake County Forest Preserve. The forest preserve has a density goal of 15 deer per square mile.

"The practice of culling the herd has been very effective in northeastern Illinois," Jones said. "We do support culling as a means of managing the population."

In Lake County there is a limited archery hunting season for deer. Deer permits are valid for the 1995-96 season between Oct. 1 and Jan. 11, 1995. Hunting is allowed only on private property with permission and at the Chain O' Lakes State Park on Monday and Tuesday during the declared season.

Of all the methods used to cull the herd, archery hunting likely evokes the most controversy.

"It is not accurate," Davida Terry, president, The Voice for Wildlife said. She cites an article by Clare Conley, a former big game archer, who admits to poorly placed arrows causing needless suffering. Last year, a deer in Riverwoods was found with an arrow stuck in its side where gangrene had set in. Terry and other wildlife enthusiasts find the practice inhumane.

"There are various estimates on how effective bow and arrow hunters are," said Jones. "Some estimated 14 percent, others 100 percent. The DNR requires hunters to do everything possible to retrieve any animals which they have hit."

In Lake County, as in the other collar counties, firearm hunting of deer has never been allowed.

"Deer hunting has been allowed in Illinois since 1957," said Jones. "Due to the high population density of the collar counties it has never been allowed in those areas." See DEER page B2 the deer to survive long winters with limited food supply and serves to protect plants species and other types of wildlife. Those against culling deem it animal cruelty and favor letting natural deer deterrents and the balance of nature regulate the herds. Experts recommend a density of 10 to 15 deer per square mile to maintain a viable habitat.

"During the past several years the number of deer have continued to rise in the collar counties," said Marty Jones, who handles Urban Deer Management for the Department of Natural Resources throughout the state. "Deer are very adaptable to a changing environment and they have adapted very well to the urbanization of Lake, Cook and DuPage counties. There are many more deer today in those areas than car/deer accidents occur. According to the Department of Natural Resources, this is because it is the mating season. Almost 25 percent of accidents occur during November.

Since 1989, the Lake County Forest Preserve has subscribed to a deer management program which includes thinning the herd in several forest preserves by the use of marksmen. Permits to do so are issued annually by the Department of Conservation.

The Lake County Forest Preserve program is designed to protect and preserve the diversity of native species and thus preserve the ecosystem of the areas most directly impacted by the deer population.

American Education week focuses on the future

Compiled from staff reports

Adults all over the country were encouraged to go back to school this week—not for their education, but for a lesson in what schools are doing to prepare the adults of tomorrow.

The focus of American Education Week is to develop a community partnership for lifelong learning, with businesses, parents and members of the community becoming involved in school activities. In Lake County, those efforts were encouraged by United Way.

Lake County Learns, a division of United Way of Lake County, has a mission as "a voluntary partnership between business, education, See EDUCATION page B3

While estimates of permits issued for hunting this season are not readily available, the DNR law enforcement office in Spring Grove says few calls have been received complaining of hunters on private property or for poaching. In fact the most frequent calls are for hunters having baited stands.

While some believe nature will naturally cull the herd by not reproducing, others say it takes a great over population of the herd for the natural process to occur.

"In a more pristine setting that might occur sooner, because of natural predators and other factors," said Jones. "In northern Illinois, however, that has not been the case. The deer problem would be so bad that everyone would be affected by it in order for that natural process to happen."

Despite the controversy, for now, the practice of culling the herd continues to be the choice of the Lake County Forest Preserve.

"Our goal all along has been to have a habitat which is good for the deer and for the animals and plants in the area," Kimmel said. "The type of management we use has been successful and we conduct detailed research each year to track those results."

Kimmel says the forest preserve has looked at the option of fertility drugs but feels they have not been perfected for use at this time and most likely won't be for at least three to five years.

"We have not made a decision on whether or not to seek a permit to cull deer this year," Kimmel added. "That decision will likely be made in the next several weeks."

Culling has taken place during the months of January and February in the past.

Service fair provides vets assistance

Help in a number of areas will be offered to indigent veterans from both Lake and McHenry counties.

The first ever Vet Service Fair sponsored by the Lake County Vet and Vietnam Veterans of America Chapter 714 will take place Nov. 17 from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the Department of Veteran's Affairs (formerly the North Chicago V.A. Medical Center) gymnasium.

Besides medical, food and clothing, the program will offer assistance which can help vets in longterm situations.

Around 20 volunteers will donate their time and services to assist in updating discharge papers, job hunting and resume writing, veterans benefits, public aid and more.

Representatives from both the public and private sectors including the Social Security Administration, the Private Industry Council of Lake County and the Veterans Assistance Commission are among those featured at the fair.

Donations are being accepted for the fair, including monetary, clothing and many other items. Call Stan Villarreal at (708) 566-1684. —By TINA SWIECH

County to vote on funding

The Lake County Board will vote on their 1996 budget which includes funding for additional study on the proposed extension of Yorkhouse Road, Nov. 17.

The controversial measure has become a vocal question around Lake County. Several municipalities have passed resolutions urging the county board to table the project.

The meeting begins at 10 a.m., on the 10th floor of the county building and is open to the public.

expansion. It might be something built for a future traffic court. That is something I would like to promote," Stolman said.

Remodeling of the existing facility will be limited because much of the infrastructure such as sprinkler systems, air conditioning in the WRS wing and a fully equipped kitchen within the facilities remain in tact. A plush dining room area will be converted into a lobby.

Recreational opportunities available on the site include a gymnasium, baseball fields and an outdoor challenge course near the river.

Officials also said much of the surrounding property could be converted to outdoor recreational uses.

The county will abide by all state and federal security codes for a medium to maximum security detention center, officials said, and the county will shy away from fencing and barbed wired in order blend in better with the surrounding upscale developments in Lincolnshire.

Coffee Masters fire investigation not easy

TINA L. SWIECH

Staff Reporter

Sheriff's detectives say they have an origin of the fire which destroyed a $4 million coffee plant, but they still have no cause.

Last Friday, officials from the Fox Lake Fire Department said they have turned the investigation over to Lakemoor Police. Lake County Sheriff's also continue to investigate. Twenty seven fire departments from three counties assisted Oct. 27 in putting out the blaze that burnt the Coffee Masters building located at 27709 Concrete Drive in Lakemoor.

Since the blaze, Fox Lake fire investigators, state fire marshals and the Lake County Sheriff's Department have been investigating the cause of the fire which spread quickly from a location determined to be the southwest portion of the warehouse.

Detective Bob Maze from the department said, "There's a lot to do. There's a lot we have to go over." Maze explained that fire investigation is particularly hard, because sometimes evidence can get burned up in the blaze. "It's very difficult with fires of that size," said the detective.

"Whether electrical or mechanical, we may never know," Maze said. The sheriff's department slowed down on the investigation last week, due to other urgencies, he said, but they plan to continue interviewing Coffee Master employees this week.

Coffee Masters is still operating in three different locations. Orders are being taken by calling the original phone number.

LINDENHURST—Victory Health Services is poised to present their vision of a continuing care facility in Lindenhurst. The facility would include cottages, apartments and assisted living quarters in addition to the current nursing home. The initial plans are expected to go before village trustees in the about two weeks. The company sent out a mailing to prospective customers and received 500 responses a day later.

Ball fields may get green light

LAKE VILLA—Village officials hope a few remaining issues can be resolved to allow baseball fields at the Sun Lake Forest Preserve on Grass Lake Road. The 14-acre site is currently a farm field. The Lake Villa Township Baseball League has been trying to secure this site for three years. The original agreement which ceded the 525-acre preserve said ball fields would be permitted. The village and the Forest Preserve have only a few issues remaining. Village officials hope to have the kinks worked out so they can approve an intergovernmental agreement at this week's board meeting.

'Superstore' replaces Menards

MUNDELEIN—Plans are in the works to replace the Menards in Oak Creek Plaza with a superstore at the same location. Property owner Ron Boorstein reported the new facility would cover 160,000 square feet at the west end of the center. A curb cut off Rte. 45 would be added for access "It will be the biggest store in Mundelein," he said. He sees no problem in filling the current facility, although efforts to find a tenant for the vacant Welton's/Cub store have as yet been unsuccessful.

WAUCONDA—The Wauconda Fire Department is marking 40 years of its annual Thanksgiving Dance on Nov. 18 from 8 p.m. to midnight. The dance has continued through the years as a fund raiser for the department and as a way for people to see each other and have a chance of winning Thanksgiving dinner. Fifty turkeys will be raffled off, and approximately 100 prizes will be given away at the door. The dance is being held at the fire department's Station No. 1, 109 W. Liberty St., near the intersection of Main Street and Route 176. Tickets are $4.

Townhome plan criticized

FOX LAKE—Residents from all over Fox Lake voiced their concerns at Monday night's village board meeting regarding a proposed townhome project. Longtime Britz Subdivision resident Bob McNally said he was aware a PUD (Planned Unit Development) ordinance is already being written, but he warned the village to beware of a potentially dangerous intersection for which they could be liable. Trustee Jim Pappas agreed the Four Oaks 39-unit townhome project could be a problem for school buses entering and exiting the site from Rollins Road. After the PUD ordinance is complete, the issue of accepting the full proposal will be brought to the board's attention.

Park district study rejected

GRAYSLAKE—A study to determine the impact on the Village of Grayslake's budget if they were to create a Grayslake Community Park District has been knocked down. The president of the Park District Board of Commissioners Sharon Desjardins says the study is flawed and projected operating costs cited in the study are inaccurate due to errors in the park inventory used by the study. The study looked at the cost to residents in forming a new department with the abolition of the current Park's and Recreation Department.

Education

services and community. It works through a unique collaboration to identify needs and develop solutions for all individuals in our community and promotes learning as a family and community priority."

Brian Leverenz, community service associate for United Way, said the partnership worked especially hard to encourage parents and businesses to take time for the schools during the week. Packets and flyers were distributed throughout the county to highlight the importance of American Education Week.

"We're trying to get education and business collaborating with each other," he explained. "We want to get parents involved with their child's education."

Parents were prompted to visit classrooms, schools invited members of the community to participate, businesses were encouraged to allow employees to take time off to go their children's schools, all in an effort to show support for education, he said.

The schools, in turn, could supply information on what they are doing and what parents could expect. Parents were also encouraged to celebrate Family Reading Night with their children.

Roycealee Wood, assistant regional superintendent of schools, said the office works with Lake County Learns in encouraging support of American Education Week and Learning Connection Week.

"We have sent letters to all the principals and superintendents asking them to allow visitations during the week," she said. "We encourage them to have their buildings ready and available."

Not only parents, but business leaders as well are encouraged to visit schools in their area.

"It's an opportunity for the schools to feature some things that are very nice for people to see, and allows youngsters to develop an awareness and appreciation for education," she said.

Schools in Lake County celebrated in different ways, but always with the same purpose.

The Gavin Central School in Ingleside placed the emphasis on parent involvement. All week long the school has participated in the national event by inviting parents to join in on the many activities going on.

"Parents can come and see what the kids do this week," said Principal Diane Thompson. On the first day of the program, Thompson said there were about 10 parents per classroom. She expected more as the week continues. This is the second year Gavin Central has participated in American Education Week.

"The parents can come all week long, and the teachers welcome them any time," said Thompson.

In Mundelein District 75, the schools planned different activities each day.

Students at Washington School combined American Education Week with National Children's Book Week. Parents even received a homework assignment to share memories of their own school days in essay form.

"Our basic objective is to invite parents to see the schools in action and become aware of what is happening with their children's education," said Superintendent Richard Lanaghan.

The entire community at Wauconda High School took part in activities relating to American Education Week. The school encouraged parents to become more involved with their children's education by visiting their schools and classrooms and encouraging them while they are doing their homework.

Students were asked a different question each day during morning announcements related to American education, with the incentive of a tray of cookies to the first classroom to answer the question correctly, said Principal John C. Rayburn.

The first question asked Monday was to name the last triple crown winner in Major League Baseball. Other questions during the week were based on math, English, science and social studies.

"The main objective at Wauconda High School is to help our students learn and grow," Rayburn said.

The administration at Lake Zurich Unit District 95 presented a series of gifts to district staff in appreciation for all of their efforts throughout the year.

Superintendent Dr. Edward P. Cox and Assistant Superintendent Dr. Sharon V. Kramer distributed American Education Week coffee mugs and pins to each teacher. The mugs were specially designed for the district, and list its eight schools on one side.

Staff members received an apple on Monday, with a note that read: "An Apple for the Teacher in Celebration of American Education Week."

The district's staff was also treated to a continental breakfast. Administrators and board of education members were also presented with coffee mugs and engraved name tags.

Copeland Manor School in Libertyville celebrated with parent visitations on Nov. 13 and 14. The parents visited classes for 30 minutes and had an opportunity to see what their children do in school all day.

The school also held an assembly titled "One of a Kind," geared towards preventing low self-esteem in children. The program is based on components of a program set forth by the National Institute of Drug Awareness and the U.S. Department of Education.

Libertyville High school also had parent visitations on Nov. 13 and a parent organization honored the teachers with snacks they provided all week long in the teacher's lounge.

Unending motion marks CLC's year

Silhouetted against a wintery sky, the steel skeleton of a building under construction at the Grayslake campus signals a new era at College of Lake County. A modest high rise, the upward direction illustrates CLC's multi-dimensional movement.

In the annual report, Chairman James Lumber of the CLC board of trustees, called attention to what appears to be the "perpetual motion" of the 25-year-old community college. CLC officials have gotten used to change, not the least of which will be selection of a new president in 1996 to replace Dr. Daniel LaVista, the energetic visionary who extended the school's reach to all parts of the county, charted the course for new facilities at the main campus and Waukegan's Lakeshore campus, and spearheaded minitory initiatives.

Interim President Gretchen J. Naff called attention to CLC's solid record in serving the county's increasingly diverse student body, steps taken to utilize new technology in the development of an off-campus learning network and establishment of a new degree option, the associate in engineering science degree. CLC's notable associate degree in nursing program received renewed accreditation.

In a more nuts and bolts vein, the college is realizing the benefits of a student tracking system begun several years ago that measures individual attainment of academic goals. The study emphasized the benefits of remedial instruction. In short, students taking remedial work were far more successful. The college made notable strides in transfer planning services for students pursuing college beyond CLC.

Perhaps the most intriguing advance of the past year has been CLC's role in providing a cutting edge for Lake County's changing demographics. The result has been programs focusing on first generation college students, women pursuing nontraditional career fields and students of color.

So much of what goes on at the institution supported by a $37 million budget the past year isn't evident to county residents. Community involvement will be greatly enhanced when two new buildings come on line in the near future providing for art, humanities, human services, child-care and performing arts. Occupancy of a new instructional building is scheduled in nine months and the arts center will be ready for use in January, 1997.

Today, tax supported education is the subject of much criticism, a good bit of it justified especially at the primary and secondary level where sinking test scores are pondered by educators and taxpayers alike. At CLC, though, the motion is all forward. We all are better for that.

EDITORIAL Lakeland Newspapers

Porter's pro-English legislation an election year bid for votes

RICHARD RINALO

Candidate for Congress

In an opinion piece published on Nov. 3 in the Lakeland Newspapers, Congressman John Porter argues in favor of legislation aimed at encouraging immigrants to learn English.

In particular, he points to the absurdities of recently enacted legislation which attempts to accommodate voters who do not know English.

COMMENTARY

Congressman Porter has introduced a bill to reverse these laws and to require that ballots be printed only in English.

As Congressman Porter's challenger in the upcoming Republican primary next March, I must grant that Mr. Porter has proposed a sensible law. And he is right when he argues that for the sake of unity, all Americans, including those recently arrived from foreign lands, should learn English.

But there is an element of hypocrisy on Congressman Porter's part of which voters should be aware.

The fact is, Mr. Porter has not always supported legislation aimed at promoting English as our national language. In 1994, Congressman Porter voted against a measure which would have eliminated $215 million in bilingual education funding.

Funding for bilingual education only serves to discourage children of immigrant families from learning English. And even if the legislation were not outright harmful, still this country no longer has the money for such programs. At any rate, it is hypocritical for a supporter of bilingual education funding to now step forward as a champion of pro-English legislation.

But this is an election year, and Congressman Porter faces an electorate disenchanted at his voting record. He evidently hopes that voters, impressed by a piece or two of popular legislation, will forgive him for his numerous unpopular votes earlier this year.

The fact is that Mr. Porter, though a Republican in name, cast more votes against the GOP's reform agenda, the Contract with America, than all other Illinois House Republicans combined! He voted against term limits, against the anti-tax balanced budget amendment, against property rights, against the middle class tax cut, and on and on. No wonder he now feels compelled to placate angered Republicans. See COMMENTARY page B5

Remember that number. That's our new area code scheduled to go into effect Jan. 20. Ameritech has scheduled a confusing three month period of introduction when 708 and 847 will overlap.

To be sure, 708 had a short life, falling prey to new residents, pagers, modems, cellular phones and new businesses.

According to phone company officials, there will be no long distance charge for calls made within the 708, 847, 312 and 630 (yeh, another new area code in the metro area). More area code changes are on the way as society becomes more computerized.

Seven digit calls are going the way of the dodo bird. Be prepared for 10-digit phone calls all the time.

SURPRISE DEFEAT—Friends and supporters of Nan Fairhurst, long time College of Lake County trustee, were shocked and dismayed when she was defeated for reelection in the fall school elections. Fairhurst's defeat was all the more surprising because she hadn't done anything to anger the electorate. Her campaign efforts were hampered by some health problems. She deserves a vote of appreciation for devoted service to CLC.

executive of United Way of Lake County, has settled in nicely into the midwestern way of doing things even though he is a born and bred east coaster.

Weber was born and raised in New Jersey and he spent a good bit of his professional life in upstate New York and Massachusetts. "People ask me all the time why I don't speak with a Boston accent," Doug chuckles. "They think I've been in the midwest all my life." Weber mentioned that he and his wife did pause a bit during their stay in New England when their daughter started talking about "parking the caar in the yaard."

One of Weber's aims is to extend the reach of United Way into every corner of the county. From both personality and speech aspects, Doug was an ideal choice.

BRIGHT FUTURE—Credit Green Oaks Mayor Tom Adams with political intelligence for backing away from a bid for the state senate seat being vacated by veteran Republican Dave Barkhausen.

Adams would have been a fine addition to the General Assembly—solid GOP credentials, achievement in business and the "right stuff" philosophically. But a determined Adams campaign against State Rep. Tom Lachner (R-Lake Bluff), another quality candidate and a senate aspirant, could well have turned into a fractious experience for the GOP. By stepping aside, Adams demonstrates a strong sense of team play besides adding to his potential as part of the Republican future in Lake County.

Erika stayed with gramps at the table, using the catsup on her hotdog for a facial. Not to worry. While grampa finished a sandwich, grandma cleaned up with a warm washcloth. In the time it took to corral John, Erika turned a bowl of Jello into another cosmetic exercise. Grandpa wasn't inattentive to the antics of a pair of active agers. He was having a great time. After all, who doesn't have fun at the circus?

-PARTY LINES-

Beyer likely out of Dist. 52 race, supporting Mullinex

Party Lines, the Lakeland Newspapers column of political commentary, is prepared from staff reports.

Neither rain, nor sleet, nor snow stopped the Lake County Republican Central Committee from hosting its Candidate Screening Day at the Libertyville Civic Center last Saturday.

Candidates had the opportunity to present their platform, answer the five standards questions including whether or not they were a dues paying member of the federation and then took questions from the executive committee.

The committee will have some hard choices to make when it meets in executive session to determine who will receive the endorsements.

Facing tough competition will be those vying for the 52nd district state representative seat currently held by Al Salvi. Seeking the seat are: County Board Rep. Mark Beaubien, Phillip Mullinex of Grayslake and Round Lake Park Mayor Charlene Beyer. Only Mullinex was screened Saturday. Beaubien will be screened on Nov. 27. Beyer, who has not made an official announcement, has not requested screening, leaving many to believe she has decided against running. Insiders say she may be supporting Mullinex in the campaign.

Three are vying for endorsement as Recorder of Deeds including Bob Neal, Alberta Meyer and Rita Cooper. Neal will likely win the endorsement hands down.

The executive committee seemed to leave little doubt veteran GOP leader John Porter would most likely receive the endorsement over newcomer Richard Rinalo of Lake Forest. Rinalo faced a battery of tough questions from the screening committee.

The endorsements will be announced Nov. 27.

Kurtis on Kurtis—Bill Kurtis, popular Chicago television news anchor, has covered scores of political campaigns in his quarter century career, but he won't be dwelling on politicians in a talk Tuesday, Nov. 21, at the Forge Club on S. Milwaukee Ave.

Kurtis will headline a joint meeting of the South Central Chamber of Commerce and the Libertyville-Mundelein-Vernon Hills Chamber of Commerce. Kurtis is expected to dwell on his career in producing lengthy documentaries.

More announcements—Additional announcements are expected soon in several races. With 16 of the 23 county board members up for election several incumbents have yet to announce their reelection plans. Look for official announcements from Jim LaBelle (Dist. 4—Zion), Debra Halas (Dist. 9—Waukegan), Dick Raffis (Dist. 11—Grayslake), John Schullen (Dist. 13—Libertyville), Carol Spielman (Dist. 22—Highland Park) and Robert Buhai (Dist. 23—Highland Park).

Fred fading?—Fred Foreman of Gurnee once mentioned as a potential candidate for just about every state office in Illinois, now is practicing politics at the level of committee fund raising. Foreman is in pretty good company, though.

Lake County's former state's attorney who later served as U.S. district attorney during the Bush administration, has such teammates as Jim Thompson, Dan Webb, and Sam Skinner drumming up contributions for Cook County State's Att. Jack O'Malley's reelection bid. Notice that members of the quartet served as federal prosecutors. So that's what happens to high-flying legal eagles.

Not funded—An item in the last edition of Party Lines left out a very important word—"not." In the ethics bill sponsored by House Majority Leader Bob Churchill and State Senator Adeline Geo-Karis, members of the General Assembly will not receive compensation for food or lodging for any regular spring session day after May 31.

Date with Bob—Friends of County Board Chairman Bob Depke have Dec. 6 circled for Bob's annual holiday fling at Midlane Country Club. George Ann Depke is taking reservations at $50 each at 244-7337.

Senate nomination.

Cross, North Chicago industrialist, and Winn, president of Hollister, Inc., Libertyville, a major player in the health care industry, were co-chairmen of Al's big fund raiser ($1,000 a plate for some) last week at Midlane Country Club. But you can bet Salvi won't let them rest on their laurels with a long and costly campaign ahead.

Campaign launch—Steve Mountsier, District 17 County Board (Barrington) aspirant, hopes a snazzy dinner-dance and the presence of Lt. Gov. Bob Kustra will jump start his campaign against Allan Roberts for a Republican nomination. The dinner-dance, scheduled for Biltmore Country Club, is a first ever for Cuba Township GOPers. Mountsier, retired and a resident of Lake Barrington Shores, is a former township chairman.

More mischief?—Pat Quinn, the mischief man of Illinois politics, has cooked up another referendum idea for the Nov. 5, 1996 election. Quinn, a Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, is asking voters if they want the solons to cut their salaries and pensions before cutting funds for education, health and Medicare. That's a no brainer, Pat.

of the 10th District with a piece or two of sensible legislation.

We see here an example of that classic technique employed by professional politicians who find themselves out of step with their district. They vote liberal when unopposed, then suddenly change their tune as an election approaches (President Clinton is the master of this strategy). My guess is that voters won't be fooled by Congressman Porter's belated attempts at popular legislation. His anti-Republican votes are simply too numerous to overlook.

-LETTERS TO THE Editor-

School fund quest misleading Editor:

The number of tax increase proposals for our local school districts is disappointing, but not surprising. Driven by the continual expansion of our bureaucratic school financing system, as well as the population growth in Lake County, our citizens are destined to see skyrocketing property taxes for some time to come.

The problem is the false impression our citizens and leaders maintain regarding the need for continuous additional funding. Most of the money needed for financing schools and other taxing districts already exists, it's just not being run with the true efficiency of the free market system, or better still, the not-for-profit "third sector" of our economy.

With school boards, administrations, associations, and the like, we pour enormous dollars into a bureaucracy that does nothing to educate our children. Since 1968, spending per pupil in elementary and secondary education nationwide has more than doubled, and that's after adjusting for inflation. Yet, average test scores of college bound students have dropped by five percent during this period. In spite of the conventional wisdom, there is no correlation between spending large sums of money and the quality of education.

Privatized voucher systems around the country are enjoying increasing success, as are homeschoolers. The Catholic schools also manage to educate for $2,500 per pupil, as all these alternatives to the status quo see students perform as well or better than the public school system, and for less cost per student. Certainly, the teachers unions and state and local administrators are wary of this, as it threatens their power base.

I reviewed my property tax bill with my accountant a few months ago, and he informed me that it was common for taxing districts to "waste" 50 percent or more of their revenue. Fund accounting methods encourage waste by requiring budgets to be met to qualify for similar or greater amounts in subsequent years. Taxpayers foot much of the bill for public employee pensions, yet the rest of us assume responsibility for ours in the private sector. Illinois has more taxing districts at 6,722 than any state in the country by far. Are we better off for this as compared to the 49 other states? Also, a loophole was installed last August as Governor Edgar signed SB 368 into law, allowing non-referendum bonds to be reissued by taxing bodies without voter approval. This could free up between $400 to $500 million in Cook and the collar counties. We, and our children, will pay for this for years to come.

The alternatives are to achieve a balance of power between our government and our citizens, create alternatives that minimize bureaucracy, support vouchers for all citizens, and seriously reform the taxing systems which currently drain not only our wallets, but our futures as well.

Vote no to tax increase referendums, and yes to a better system that benefits us all.

Pro or con for expansion?

Editor:

Transportation studies have been done for Lake-Cook Road which indicate the roadway should be improved to six lanes. The majority of the communities along Lake-Cook Road, including Long Grove, have supported this effort. However, Buffalo Grove opposes the conclusions of these studies.

One of the major contributors to the expansion of Lake-Cook Road would be extension of F.A.P. 342/Rt. 53 into northern Lake County. The traffic pattern would increase along Lake-Cook Road to feed the office and research corridor created by Buffalo Grove, Riverwoods and Northbrook. Many more employees from this office and research corridor will be able to move to the northern extension corridor of Rt. 53. It is curious that you have taken a strong position supporting the construction of F.A.P. 342 and oppose the expansion of the existing Lake-Cook Road to handle the present and anticipated traffic impacts if F.A.P. 342 is built.

While you may oppose expansion of Lake-Cook Road to please your local constituents because it is in their back yards, you are not being totally forthright with them and letting them know your support for F.A.P. 342 means the necessary expansion of Lake-Cook Road. We feel that Lake-Cook Road can be expanded without the need or pressure of F.A.P. 342, but the reverse will not be true or good transportation planning.

Get involved in education

Editor:

For school funding, why is tuition the answer?

There are many reasons, but a few follow. It is important for the successful development of children that their parents bear the greatest interest in and burden for their growth. For children to learn effectively, both intellectually and spiritually, it is absolutely necessary that their parents act as examples. No one, not a teacher, a priest, a day care worker, can substitute for a parent.

Raising taxes to pay for schooling asks people who do not have children at school to become responsible for the children of others. This is a grievous mistake.

By requiring parents to pay tuition for their children's schooling, it is more likely that the parents will take the time to insure that their children are maturing properly. Parents hopefully will assume all of the responsibility for their children's development. Parents will make sure that their children grow up to contribute to society in a positive way. If parents refuse to accept all of the responsibility for their children, failure will result. Parents abandon their children, and the children lose.

Country-wide studies have been done comparing test scores, graduation rates and jobs held by students from schools that require parents to pay tuition and schools that do not charge tuition. Time and time again, students from schools that charge tuition do better. The answer is clear. Parents, do you not want your children to succeed? Is money more valuable to you than the future of your children? Then why won't you pay tuition for your children to go to school?

In Lake County, representatives from the Lake County Health Department will be on hand at the County of Lake Building lobby, 18 N. County St., Waukegan, from 10 a.m. to noon, to help smokers quit, as well as at the Waukegan, Libertyville, and Grayslake train stations during the morning rush.

throughout the county; sign a pledge to stop smoking for the day of the Smokeout; and see a display of what smoking does not only to your lungs, but to other organs such as your heart and stomach.

Galassie stated that the Health Department's goal during the Smokeout is to reduce the number of tobacco users, especially youths, and increase public awareness of the importance of reducing tobacco use as a vital component of health care reform. "Many people know what smoking does to your lungs, but many don't realize how it also ruins other internal organs, as well as harming the health of those around you," he said. Galassie urged smokers to take a few minutes to visit the Health Department's booth at the County Building on Nov. 16 from 10 a.m. to noon. "The Smokeout is a great first step to giving up smoking. As the slogan goes, 'Just do it'. Quit smoking."

Porter honored by academic medical centers

Rep. John Porter, 10th Dist., was honored by Chicago's leading academic medical centers in recognition of his outstanding leadership in Congress to secure vital federal funding for medical research.

Congressman Porter's 22 years in public office have been marked by his efforts to maintain the standards of quality healthcare and medical research. Under his leadership on the powerful House Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, particularly under his tenure as chairman, the National Institutes of Health (NIH) has awarded more than $300 million in the last three years to fund medical research programs for Chicago's academic medical centers.

The five academic medical center hospitals and medical schools recognizing Porter for his support of medical research are: Loyola University Medical Center's McGaw Hospital and Stritch School of Medicine; Northwestern Memorial Hospital and Northwestern University Medical School; Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center and Rush Medical College; The University of Chicago Hospitals and the Pritzker School of Medicine; and the University of Illinois at Chicago Medical Center and College of Medicine.

Honoring Porter at a ceremony in the University of Chicago's new downtown conference center, Northwestern Memorial President and Chief Executive Officer Gary A. Mecklenburg said, "For more than adequate funding for the National Institutes of Health. We are honored to present this award to Chairman Porter for his continu-

Rep. John Porter (R-IL), left, accepts a citation for his efforts on behalf of medical research from Northwestern Memorial Hospital President and CEO Gary Mecklenburg.

two decades, Congressman John Porter has fought to assure that academic medical centers have necessary resources to support biomedical research, train the next generation of physicians and provide advanced patient care. Nowhere is this more evident than in Chairman Porter's leadership in ing leadership and service."

"The unprecedented advancement in our ability to maintain public health, prolong life and improve the quality of life has been due to the scientific and health research conducted at our nation's academic medical centers. Without the foresight and support of government leaders such as Congressman Porter who have helped ensure adequate federal funding for this research, our achievements could not have been possible," said Dr. Anthony L. Barbato, president of Loyola University Medical Center.

"Funding from the National Institutes of Health has been critical to the progress being made by Rush University faculty in their efforts to unravel the cause and course of Alzheimer's disease," said Donald R. Oder, executive vice president of Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center. "We are grateful to Congressman Porter for his advocacy on behalf of biomedical research because it really holds the key to improving healthcare for the nation."

"We need more leaders like John Porter who have the vision to see that investments in research today will make the future better for everyone," said Ralph W.

Muller, president of the University of Chicago HealthSystem. "As the institution receiving the most NIH funding in Illinois, we are particularly grateful to Congressman Porter."

"I see little of more importance to total healthcare in this country than the kind of medical progress made possible by John Porter's efforts on behalf of NIH," said Mi Ja Kim, vice chancellor for research and dean of the graduate college at the University of Illinois at Chicago. "The country owes Congressman Porter its thanks for his skill and dedicated service."

"America's investment in biomedical research has paid huge dividends," said Howard J. Trienens, chairman of the Northwestern University board of trustees. "The nation's capacity to diagnose, prevent and treat a myriad of diseases, one of the benefits of this investment, makes American medicine the global standard. Because of the public investment in research, Northwestern University's Medical School is a major contributor to the world's best healthcare system. Congressman Porter has been a stalwart, steadfast and effective champion of biomedical research, and I'm delighted to participate in recognizing him for this contribution."

The National Institutes of Health, created in 1948, funds medical research in academic medical centers throughout the country. In Chicago, the five academic medical center hospitals and their affiliate medical schools conduct NIH-funded research programs targeting chronic and catastrophic diseases, including the prevention of strokes through carotid endarterectomies, Alzheimer's research, breakthrough drug treatments that dramatically reduce the pain of sickle cell anemia, AIDS research and cancer studies.

In his tenure in the U.S. House of Representatives, Porter has established a reputation for serving the best interests of citizens through conservation of resources—both fiscal and natural—and for striving to develop a balanced budget that ensures the health and welfare of chronic and catastrophically ill Americans. He became chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education in January of this year.

Holiday cards benefit Wylar Children's Hospital

Talented young patients from Wylar Children's Hospital at the University of Chicago have designed a series of holiday greeting cards which are on sale now through December. The greeting card sale will benefit the playroom at Wylar to help purchase toys and educational materials for patients and their families.

Each design symbolizes the patient's rendition of the holiday season—a Santa, a Snowman and a Snowflake Surrounded by Children. Young patients at Wylar range from toddlers to teenagers and many suffer from cancer, liver disease, burns and other serious medical problems.

"Buying these cards directly benefits the young patients at Wylar Children's Hospital," said Karen Bennett, child life specialist. "It's a wonderful way to celebrate the season of giving."

The cards are printed on card stock and contain a printed holiday message inside. The name of each child artist is also printed on the back of each card. Each packet of 20 cards costs $11. The printing of the cards was generously donated by The Jel Sert Co.; makers of Wylar's Drink Mix, Fla-Vor-Aid, Fla-Vor-Ice, Pop-Ice and Mondo Fruit Squeezers kids' products. Groups or companies wishing to purchase more than five packets (100 cards) will receive a 10 percent discount and have the option of printing a personalized message inside for a nominal fee.

Nearly every member of the school's faculty, which totals about 750, spends time in the classroom to support the goal of sharing new medical and health science knowledge with students.

Holidays don't have to be hazardous to health

Between now and 1996—at least two pounds will be gained by some people. Some more, some less. Humbug?

Be realistic: 'tis the season to put on some poundage. How much candy was consumed over Halloween? Frightening, isn't it? With more holidays approaching, be sure to avoid temptation. Plan and be determined not to gain as much weight as last year.

The American Heart Assn. of Metropolitan Chicago has some tips for holiday eating:

- Don't go to a party hungry; there's a tendency to over eat. Instead, have a small low-fat breakfast and lunch that day.
- Avoid the all-you-can eat mentality. Taste everything, but eat in smaller quantities.
- Bring something low-fat to the party and share the recipe. Others will be grateful.
- Crowd a plate with fruits, salads and vegetables, which will leave little room for the heavier items.
- Drink lots of water and avoid alcoholic beverages. When having a drink, dilute it with fruit juice or diet soda, and linger over it for as long as possible.
- Remember, food isn't the most important part of the season, people are. Concentrate on more talking—less eating.

According to AHA volunteer Judy Gerber, R.D., those who gain all their weight back after following a good diet usually start during the holidays. "Allow some indulgences," says Gerber, "but don't get discouraged and go off on a binge."

When hosting a holiday party, don't push people into eating things that are high in fat and calories. Usually guests bring plenty of dessert items, so hold back. Instead offer snack trays with low-salt crackers and breadsticks, crunchy vegetables and low-fat dips and spreads.

Gerber also suggests being more active during holiday vacations and down time. "Take the kids tobogganing, build a snowman or go for a winter wonderland walk instead of getting hooked on TV specials and football."

Victory Lakes Care Center receives top marks

Victory Lakes Continuing Care Center in Lindenhurst ranked among the best nursing homes in the nation for customer satisfaction in a survey conducted by Parkside Associates, Inc., of Park Ridge. The survey included more than 150 nursing homes across the nation. Residents and family members rated each nursing home on care, services provided, comfort, cleanliness, nursing staff and food service of each of the homes involved. Victory Lakes rated in the top 10 percent on nursing care.

"We are pleased to be recognized in this national research project," said Mary Riggs, administrator at Victory Lakes. "The results confirm the response we hear from our residents and their families on our own customer satisfaction surveys."

Victory Lakes routinely asks residents and their families for comments about the care and services it provides. The results of those questionnaires not only show consistently high ratings, but also provide ideas for areas of improvement or change.

Family asthma program offered

The American Lung Association of Ill. Lake County Region, will be co-sponsoring a family asthma program with St. Therese Medical Center on Nov. 21. Parents of asthmatic children, adults with asthma, teachers, school nurses, physical education teachers and anyone interested in learning more about asthma are invited to attend. The program will feature a session for both adults and children ages 6 to 12. Both programs will be held concurrently with different instructors. Parents with asthmatic children younger than age 6 or older than age 12 are encouraged to attend the parent session. Sara Parvinian, M.D. will be speaking to the parents. ### The Power House opens exhibit for 'Little Watts'

A new exhibit and education program opening at The Power House focuses on showing kids age 8 and under "watts" up with lights, magnets and sound. "The Little Watt" area will be introduced on Nov. 18 as part of the Power House's Science on Saturday programming.

While making pictures using magnets and iron filings, they'll learn about the characteristics of magnets (remember, opposites attract). And as they crawl into a kaleidoscope and play with convex and concave lenses, kids will learn about producing different sounds by letting them create their own music—or in some cases, noise.

The Power House will also debut a new educational program for "little watts" called "Lights, Sound...Magnets." Showtimes will be at 11 a.m., 12:30, 2 and 3:30 p.m.

The Power House is ComEd's hands-on energy education center in Zion. It is located on the shores of Lake Michigan a few miles north of Illinois Beach State Park. ## Regency Cruises Shuts Down Now What?

by JIM WARNKEN,
PRESIDENT, NORTH STAR TRAVEL, INC.

On October 29th Regency Cruise Lines shut down, leaving thousands of customers with canceled cruises and wondering if they will even get refunds of their hard earned vacation dollars. Due to stringent Maritime laws, there is hope, though.

Regency, as with all cruise lines embarking from U.S. ports, was required by the Federal Maritime Commission to post a $15 million bond as well as showing financial ability to indemnify passengers for failure to provide transportation. Regency does have such a bond underwritten by the Newcastle Protection and Indemnity Association of Newcastle, England.

Claims against Regency for "nonperformance" may be mailed to Freehill, Hogan & Mahan ATTN: George Freehill at 80 Pine St., New York, N.Y. 10005. Better yet, fax it to them at 212-425-1901. Also send a copy of your claim to Regency Cruises at 260 Madison Ave. New York, N.Y. 10016.

However, the $15 million bond previously referred to, covers only vessels embarking from U.S. ports. Therefore Regency's Regent Sun, departing from Montego Bay and the Regent Spirit, sailing the Mediterranean, may not be covered.

It's important to remember, though, that not since 1966 has any passenger booked on a certificated vessel lost money because a cruise was not provided, making cruise lines in general the most stable vacation providers in the industry.

If you did have a booking on Regency and still want to take a cruise, several cruise lines are offering to rebook passengers with verifiable bookings on Regency at the same, or close to, prices they paid for their Regency cruise. Considering the "give-a-way" fares Regency was charging on some of their cruises, and the quality cruise lines offer to match them, it might be worth taking advantage of the deals, even though you'll still have to wait for your Regency refund.

One last word. Please book with a travel agent whom you trust, and listen to their advice. During the last year, my agents turned away several clients when we refused to book the "great deal" they saw in Sunday's paper for a Regency cruise.

There's lots of great deals out there, but trust your agent or your dream vacation could become a nightmare.

Guess who's cooking the Abear turkey this year?

For any of you guys out there who assumed it must be me or a female relative, you may also be shocked to know that WOMEN NOW WORK OUTSIDE THE HOME. It's true. And if any of you ladies out there guessed "me," you are obviously married to some of the aforementioned guys. However, read on—there's hope. The obvious answer, since the cook is not me, is that my husband will be preparing our Thanksgiving turkey. Actually, he will be making the entire dinner, if any of you readers can believe that. Honest. And no, I don't feel guilty. Not a bit. My femininity is not threatened by the sight of my man holding a turkey baster.

First of all, let me set the record straight for you guys out there who are now hooting and mumbling to yourselves, "Real men don't cook turkeys! They shoot them! I'll bet he cried over 'Sleepless in Seattle,' too!" You are wrong. He slept through "Sleepless in Seattle." My husband is as manly (i.e., capable of using a remote control) as the next guy.

Actually, he began cooking dinners as a matter of necessity—he gets home from work sometimes two hours before me (if any of you guys just read that and said, "So?", ask your wife to hit you). Of course, he wasn't always the competent chef he is today. And you meatballs, including the pint of half and half for the gravy. As we sat down to dinner, he proudly waited for us to taste his "creation."

Meatballs immediately came spewing out of our mouths and back onto our plates. Incidentally, we have never eaten Swedish meatballs again. And he has never lived it down (which is why I included it here for YOUR

BRANDY'S DANDY YAMS

3 T. brown sugar
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 of the juice from a 40 oz. can of yams
1/2 can of yams
1 orange
1 apple, sliced (unpeeled)
Directions: Mix the yam juice and brown sugar and place in baking dish with yams. Add sliced apple; cut orange in half and squeeze in the juice. Add salt and cinnamon, and bake in the oven at 350 degrees until bubbling hot!

So, c'mon, guys—this is the 90s. Pick up a baster and repeat after me: WEBERS ARE FOR WIMPS—REAL MEN USE OVENS. Besides—my husband needs someone to swap recipes with!

should know that male cooking distinctly differs from female cooking in two important ways:

1. MEN DO NOT READ RECIPES. (Actually, this is not too surprising, considering that they do not ask for directions when they're lost, either). This was disastrously proven in my husband's first attempt at cooking. He knew I was planning to make Swedish meatballs for dinner, and he decided to surprise me by having it prepared when I got home.

The ingredients were at the beginning of the recipe, followed by instructions on how to prepare the meatballs first, and then the gravy. However, he is a GUY, and once he lined up the ingredients, he decided that he didn't need any stupid directions to tell him how to put it all together. And so, he put ALL of the ingredients into the enjoyment!

2. MEN LIKE TO EXPERIMENT. Actually, this could have something to do with No. 1—since they do not read recipes, every meal turns out to BE an experiment. But I think it's also a part of basic "guy" nature to compete at everything they do. If they're going to cook, they have to cook better than their wife. So, if I show him how to make something the first time, he almost always will feel compelled to add some new, mystery ingredient. More often than not, it's as good or even (I'll admit it) better than mine. In fact, last Thanksgiving he came up with a new recipe for yams, and because I appreciate your reader loyalty to this column, here it is for your enjoyment (he's going to kill me, but he'll get over it):

Good Food

Enjoy old-fashioned pumpkin pie

2 frozen 9-inch pie crusts
2 eggs
2 cups pumpkin
3/4 c. sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 tsp. ginger
1/4 tsp. cloves
1 can (13 oz.) evaporated milk

Scrape out inside of pumpkin and cut fresh pumpkin into chunks. Cut off rind. Boil for one hour. Drain and mash chunks in strainer to remove excess water. Measure out two cups of pumpkin (a large pumpkin yields about 10 cups). You can use this recipe with one 16-ounce can of pumpkin, but it only makes one pie.

Heat oven to 425 degrees. Beat eggs slightly; beat in remaining ingredients. Pour into pie crust and bake for 15 minutes. Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees. Bake 45 minutes.—by ARLENE FORNANDER

'Holidays' 'Wonderful Life' of '90s

In "Home For the Holidays," director Jody Foster, using the same "today" insight that won her two Academy awards for acting, introduces us to a family not too untypical of the often dysfunctional present.

Another of today's top actresses, Holly Hunter, a lonely single mother, takes us "home" for Thanksgiving after she has lost her job as a museum artist and been told by her teenage daughter that she will spend the holidays losing her virginity.

While asking herself, "Who are these people?", Hunter joins them in perpetuating a childhood that seems to still pervade this home and this family in scenes that whirl with comedy and craziness, but thankfully have a retrospective moment here and there.

We meet the core of the family, Mom, played by the magnificent Ann Bancroft, who smokes too much and hides her gray hair with a wig as she denies the aging her almost senile husband Charles Durning is giving in to. They furnish a continuity that helps us empathize with their unhappy children.

Kudos for Robert Downey, Jr.'s gay brother portrayal, which happily plays down the character's homosexuality in favor of his need to be lovingly scampish and often selfish. He is never happier than when he is harassing their prudish sister played by television's "Hope," Cynthia Stevenson.

Foster helps those of us who have stopped pretending to be a Dr. Spock-spewed family feel the love-hate relationships that come from not being able to choose one's relations, but yet needing the love and security only they can supply.

On the other hand, Foster unnecessarily allows her characters to sporadically bicker bigger than life. Dumping the turkey and most of the trimmings on Stevenson's head may be going a step too far.

This movie has its shortcomings, but as a whole we did enjoy it about four out of five stars worth.

"Home" is rated PG-13, a rating we feel is a little lenient, but hey, this is the 90s where wrong and right seem to be getting less black and white and more gray by the day.—by GLORIA DAVIS

Victorian Christmas in sight

Midwesterners who long for the days of an old-fashioned Christmas are in for a memorable experience this holiday season as the city of Lake Geneva, Wis., presents its "Light in Every Window Victorian Christmas" weekend, Dec. 1 to 3.

This year's Victorian Christmas holiday event will take visitors back in time with townspeople in authentic Victorian costumes, Father Christmas, and Christmas carolers roaming the streets as part of the schedule of events.

Among the features will be Lake Geneva's downtown beautifully and festively decorated. Each shop will have a display candle light in every window, decorated Christmas trees will adorn the streets, and holiday music will be heard throughout the streets of downtown. The Badger High School Carolers will roam the streets on Saturday singing holiday favorites. Visitors will be treated to a variety of performances on Saturday throughout the town, including choirs, guitarists, flutists and pianists.

The Great Electric Christmas Parade begins at 5 p.m. on Saturday. This unique, night-time parade featuring handmade floats will light up the town as it winds through the streets, led by Father Christmas. Visitors will also be invited to walk through Lake Geneva's Bed & Breakfast Inns on Sundays during December from 1 to 3 p.m.

For further information on Lake Geneva's "Light in Every Window Victorian Christmas," call (312)329-1347.

Alumnus

in their Ingleside home. This was a turning point in Ullberg's life.

While fast asleep, Ullberg and his mom were awakened by his father Axel at 3 a.m. Apparently his car in an attached garage had an electrical shortage and started on fire, setting the house ablaze.

Ironically, his brother Eric was a firefighter, but he was stationed in Urbana at the time (Eric went on later to become a firefighter for the Fox Lake department).

"We got out in 30 seconds before the house filled with smoke," said Ullberg. The fire left a shell of a home, and much of its contents were burnt. One thing that survived the inferno was a heavy medallion Ullberg received as a child at Big Hollow from the Fox Lake American Legion Post 703.

After he and his father rebuilt the home, Ullberg began to travel. For three and a half months he sailed around the world and visited exotic countries in the far east, gaining inspiration for future stories.

After a brief period of culture shock, Ullberg went on to achieve a master's degree in social science and anthropology. He then taught for a while at a summer camp for gifted children from around the world.

From there, Ullberg moved to Washington, D.C. and began using his many talents. He taught stage combat, took part in a production at the Kennedy Center, made an arts and entertainment video for channel 50, and shot footage for a CD Rom in California.

REVIEW

'Carousel's' staging outstanding

William Pullinsi's Candlelight Dinner Playhouse now presents a renovated version of Rodgers' and Hammerstein's melodic classic, "Carousel." The original Pollyanna touch is gone from this new production, replaced by a turn-of-the-century dimness that preempted a darker Victorian era.

A musical ride on the gaily decorated horses of the Merry-Go-Round in the park has become the sunlight in the lives of the young female toilers in one of the notorious dank sweatshops of that time.

Although the timeless music of Rodgers' and Hammerstein is still the star of the show, Pullinsi's staging and Bill Bartelt's scenic designs steal a lot of the spotlight by spraying on a new coat of paint for this rather time-worn musical adaptation of Molnar's "Liliom."

The ladies are the strongest both musically and dramatically with Gwen Eagleton's Julie Jordan a fitting self-sacrificing heroine filled with a spiritual and physical vitality. Cynthia Cobb's Carrie is vivacious and pert, and Karen Anice Long's powerful voice is meant for the production's biggest songs, "June is Bustin' Out All Over," and "You'll Never Walk Alone."

Marlene Flood reminds us of an aging Ann Baxter in her role as Mrs. Mullins, the trollopy owner of the carousel.

On the distaff side, Christopher Garbrecht supplies the booming voice needed for Billy's "Soliloquy," though his dramatic emoting is halting. Our heart still skips a beat as the voices of Julie and Billy blend in "If I Loved You."

Adequately executing the other male supporting roles are

Gwen Eagleton, Cynthia Cobb

Clif Morts as a more polished Jigger, Paul Slade Smith as the tallest Mr. Snow ever, and Robert Thompson as the Edmund Gwen clone of a Starkeeper.

Jack Kirby's costumes brighten a slightly cloudy premise and Michael Keefe does more than justice to the outstanding R&H classics.—by GLORIA DAVIS

Magazine

medical professionals, while financial columnists touch upon everything from taxes to trusts. Lifestyle writers contribute updates on Lake County trends and include everything from travel tips to ideas on recycling. Home tips feature advice on sales, decorating and financing.

"People have been picking up the magazine and calling us, asking to be columnists, taking out ads," said Estep.

Community Highlights provide a calendar of events scheduled throughout the county. Estep said readers tell her they cut out the calendar for reference. Event organizers she had to track down at the beginning now contact her in order to submit items to the calendar.

Estep has made a decision to devote all her energy to the magazine and close down her business, Four Corners Gift Service in Grayslake.

"I really enjoy this and the people I am working with," she said.

Suburban Lake Monthly is on its way to becoming the official magazine of Lake County. Chambers of commerce and real estate offices are putting the magazine into their welcome packets.

"What we want to show people is that you don't have to go to Chicago," said Estep. "You can find it here in Lake County."

ANSWERS

Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You have a tendency this week to drag your feet and be late for important appointments. By midweek, though, you're back in the swing of things and can accomplish much. An unexpected expense arises this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) There's a fly in the ointment on the domestic scene early in the week. Tiffs are likely to occur with a loved one about finances. Instead of giving in to temptation, curb your impulse to spend. Ask for help if needed this weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Those on the road encounter some obstacles and unexpected delays. You are able to take this in stride and return home triumphant. Try not to pay attention to those rumors circulating among friends. There's nothing to them.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Don't give in to the temptation to gamble or take similar financial risks. You're not in a position to lose right now. Toward the end of the week, you come across something you had misplaced some time ago.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your behavior is inconsistent and erratic early in the week, causing co-workers to give you a wide berth. Take some time alone to find out what's bothering you and address this problem. A friend surprises you.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Conflicts seem to arise at every turn early in the week. Happily, you are able to solve them without much gnashing of teeth. Do this by relying on your excellent instincts. Put off making major decisions this weekend.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Once again, you've taken the lid off your wallet and are spending madly in anticipation of the holidays. If you don't curb this, you'll wind up with a mountain of bills instead of a sparkling holiday.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Someone close to you is being quarrelsome and is out of sorts early in the week. By midweek, the two of you are once again seeing eye to eye. Surprise events this weekend could cause a change in your social schedule.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A bigwig drives you crazy by constantly changing plans you thought were pretty much set in stone. Curb your anger at this and wait out this unsettling period. Eventually, you come up with a suggestion that works.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You'll find it easy to say no to an unreasonable request by a friend who would take advantage of you. In fact, this person has been doing so for some time and needs to be set straight once and for all.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're not able to think clearly on the job early in the week. Some are distracted by romantic events. Others are upset by what's going on at home. Make sure this is solved by week's end.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Avoid foolish risk-taking on the job now. Bigwigs are not in a particularly forgiving mood and could take drastic steps to rein you in. Someone you're dealing with isn't being totally honest.

Don't tow me

I want to alert anyone who comes into the Round Lake area and gets into an auto accident that you need to tell police up front that you have towing service with your insurance. If not, the police will call a local towing company in the Round Lake area, and have your car towed for $190. There is an additional storing fee and an additional re-tow fee. The police will have your car towed away while they're discussing the accident with you and you have no idea where your car has gone until they tell you later, then you'll spend $200-$300. I think this guy has a real racket going on and that the police department is in cahoots with him.

Thanks, team

I want to thank the Grayslake Rams football team for a wonderful year. Also thanks to Coach Dillon, Coach Mack, and Coach Jones for all the time they put in for the boys this season. It was great.

Don't legalize

I'm calling from Antioch about legalizing pot. I think you should rethink your stand about legalizing pot. Yes, God made marijuana, but he also made sharks. Are you going to swim with sharks? It's your choice whether you smoke pot or not. We as a human race can't handle alcohol, so why add pot to the list of things we can't handle? Use your brain, don't abuse it!

Get it straight

In response to "More waste," obviously you've fallen under the spell of ex-Mayor Karl and his minion, Rich Hill. The food for the open house in Round Lake Beach was not paid for by the village, but it was a donation by Devry Engineering. Please get your facts straight before you make unwanted accusations.

Teens are okay

I want to tell you that Fox Lake teenagers are great. They're out cleaning my yard right now. I've always thought the kids around here were great. Let's write more about our good kids than our bad ones.

Bus didn't fit

Everybody's complaining about the tragedy that happened in Fox River Grove. Everybody's complaining about the trains and lights. What doesn't make sense is that it's illegal for the bus driver to go through the train stop if there was no room to stop for a red light. People shouldn't go into spaces where their vehicles won't fit.

NU did it

Mr. Schroeder called the game between Northwestern and Illinois 21-17 in favor of Illinois. As a parent of someone who graduated from Northwestern, the feeling of Northwestern winning 17-14 was great. You were off by one touchdown (or expected one).

Appreciate wildlife

I'm calling about my concern for riding and boarding stables in the Lake County area, especially the Grayslake/Gurnee/Round Lake area. They're getting pushed out. I want to find out information from people where I should go to board my horse. Do I have to go all the way to Wisconsin to ride a trail? People around the stable are complaining about horse manure. That's what you get when you move to the country. Also, quit calling Animal Control or poisoning the coyotes that wander into your yard. We who have been in Illinois for a number of years appreciate our natural wildlife. Deal with it!

Editor's note: Due to the quantity of messages pertaining to the past referendum elections, not all were able to be printed. We sincerely apologize to those whose messages were not printed and encourage you to continue calling Lip Service to view your opinions.

Comfort first

As taxpayers in the Gavin School district we find it appalling that the administration is proposing to move district offices to the new building. We voted yes on a referendum which promised more classroom space for our children, not yes to extra monies being spent on eliminating new classrooms by changing them into offices for the administration. Only a few years ago money was spent remodeling the district offices at South Jr. High and the building committee voted no to moving district offices at the start of this project. Does Gavin put children first after the comfort of the administration?

The only choice

Well, Fox Lake Zoning Board, you looked into the situation and twice you denied it, but the Fox Lake mayor and their puppets have shut you down. Your only choice now would be to quit and let them go back to their old Fox Lake politics.

Seat belt push

I'm calling because two years ago I called about seat belts in buses. I was laughed at and had a lot of responses. After the tragedy in Fox River Grove and also what has happened in Aurora, I'd like to try to hear why people think seat belts should not be mandatory on school buses. I think many children would be saved. I would like to start a group to push for mandatory seat belts on school buses. My name is Dennis Catton, 740-8560.

Don't need break

My wife and I make well over $100,000 a year. We own two houses, a boat, and a couple of cars.

Needless to say, we are fairly well off. Congress' recent efforts to reform the system has to be looked at. I agree in principle in scaling back government reforming welfare, but it's morally wrong to give people like me a tax break. Tax breaks that Newt Gingrich, Phil Crane and their friends propose, is nothing but an attempt to bribe votes from the rich people and corporations. We aren't the ones that need tax breaks. Republicans need to get off their high horse and get on with reform. Leave the tax structure alone. Leave those of us who are working and can afford it pay for those who are having problems.

Why the move?

In answer to Jeff Malotto's letter to the editor, in which he expresses his concern that teachers will strike, he claims the quality of Round Lake teachers was so good. It's extremely interesting, since Mr. Malotto put both his children in private school and has his house up for sale and is moving out of the area.

Stick together

I was looking out the window this past Halloween and saw the children walking up and down the street in costumes with their parents with them. If this happened more throughout the year, I don't think the gangbangers would even want to try and be in the area.

Grove kids could have been saved if they had been strapped into seat belts, use your brain to think. A lot of those panicked kids rushed to the front of the bus when they saw the train coming. Do you think they would have made it if they had a seat belt to fumble with? In a panicked state, no less? The tragedy would have been worse if those kids had to undo seat belts. Most of them would have still been fumbling with them when the train hit the back of the bus. Seat belts on buses are impractical and dangerous. Let's not let our sympathy and grief for these children cloud our judgment enough to pass a law for mandatory seat belts. I, as a parent, feel just as bad for those children and their families as anyone. A seat belt requirement will not bring these kids back, but if instituted, will instead cause additional tragedies.

Don't deny kids

To Grayslake school district, I'm fed up with cutting out these holidays for the children because of a few Jehovah's Witnesses and another religion. The Jehovahs don't believe in saluting the flag, voting, or serving in the armed forces. I don't see why we have to comply with them. Why should our children be denied of things that they've had just because of a few?

Great trail

I would like to say how nice the Lindenhurst Haunted Trail was. It was better than Great America. The kids did a great job, the supervision of the park district was nice. I think more people should look into what Lindenhurst Park District does.

Put kids to work

I would like to see the police in Antioch pick up the children for violating curfews and have them do community service work. Pick up paper around town, or clean up the community.

Where are police?

I'm calling in response to the article titled "Police mistreatment." I live on Grand Ave. in Fox Lake and am so sick of the Fox Lake police not patrolling our area. I happen to live near one of the big bars and have young children. I've had two serious car accidents in the front of my house as the result of drunken teenagers speeding down both Grand Ave. and Stanton Point Rd. I think the Fox Lake police should patrol our area much better. I am so sick of my kids having to suffer. I'm afraid to let them play in the front yard. Where are the police when they're needed?

Value decreasing

To the folks in Gurnee saying no to the school system expansion, you should think twice. People base the value of the community and the value of homes on how good the school system is. If you have students sitting in the hallways at Warren Township High School in a year or two, it won't be viewed positively by people, therefore, our property value will be driven down. It's the same over at Woodland. Forty kids in a class does not make a situation good for education. Would you go to a city that has bad schools?

Hypocrites, fools

I'm calling in reference to the person that alleged there are hypocrites at Calvary Christian School. Several years ago I began teaching at a Christian school, two years out of college. There's not much money to be had teaching in Christian schools. So if there are any hypocrites at Calvary, they'd also have to be fools.

Use your head

I just got through washing white paint off my car. I'm against drugs just like the next guy, but the politicians in Round Lake Park have to be crazy to let kids paint on the street and let cars go through before it's dry, letting the paint splatter all over the cars. The mayor better get her head out of her pocket and start thinking about the ramifications of her actions. Wouldn't it be easier to paint posters and put them on telephone poles all over town so people can read them? It's a bad idea. Charlene Beyer, use your head!

Drop the water

Hey, Corps of Engineers, when are you going to start dropping the water in the Chain O' Lakes? It should've been done two or three weeks ago. One neighbor called the Corps and was told he should call the Chain O' Lakes Water Management. Since when does the Water Management control federal waters? If more rain or heavy frost comes, the homeowners are in for a heavy flood in the spring. Then we'll see who is to blame. By the way, how many members of Water Management are duck hunters? And the lotus flower was not increased by them, but by the clear weather and the sun.

Seniors arrested

Did you hear about the 15 seniors who were arrested in Congress on Oct. 11 for speaking out against Medicare cuts? Did anyone hear about it? It was on Phil Donahue's show.

Forget Ritalin

I think the teachers should knock off this stuff. Forget giving these kids the drug, Ritalin. They chose to be teachers. Every time a kid acts up a little bit, they want to give them Ritalin. I think they should modify their behavior and quit trying to drug our children.

Improper mix

I'm calling from Grayslake. I'd like to say I'm surprised and upset that some little orange stickers were handed out with trick-or-treat candy to little children that were paid for by the Education First committee. I don't think it's proper to mix holidays and politics. Halloween is supposed to be fun and games for kids. This is ridiculous.

Woodview drop offs

To some of the parents who drive their children to Woodview school, what part of "no parking" don't you understand? The principal has outlined the drop-off policy many times and even drew a map. When that failed, saw horses with "no parking" written on them were placed in those areas. Still, every day, parents ignore these simple guidelines. I drop off my kids every day and I'm fed up with you people who just do what you want, especially the woman who parks her Blazer on the corner of the exit, sits there, blocks all traffic turning right, until her child gets into school. Maybe we should get the Grayslake police there several mornings to issue tickets. Follow the guidelines as stated!

It's true

I'm calling in response to "Tax dollars at work." I must agree, because having been employed there in the past, I can attest to the fact that officers come in intoxicated and drink on the job at Lake County Jail. They also sleep on the job. If you want to document this, See LIPSERVICE page B23 run random drug and alcohol screens on these people. Check the officer who's at central control to be sure he's not calling ahead to make sure these guys are awake when you make rounds. See how many officers are carrying little watches with alarm clocks so they can wake up in time to make their rounds. See what's going on over there because it's very dangerous. The medical staff is underqualified. They don't care what qualifications you have as long as you have basic CPR skills.

Who to blame

I would like to thank the people who cut our telephone cable in Round Lake Beach on Nov. 1. Our Public Works did not call JULIE, and knocked out a good part of the village. If you are one of the people who had their phone service interrupted, you know who to blame—the village of Round Lake Beach. I'm sure this is another bill that we'll be taxed for because they refused to call JULIE.

Shame on Kearby

Tim Kearby, who recently wrote a letter to the editor, really has no shame. When he makes statements like, "Voters come out to take out their tax frustrations on our country's most important commodity, our children," he doesn't mention the fact that the vast majority of money that goes to education finds its way into the pockets of "educrats," administrators, and teachers. In the form of continuing salary increases, early retirement, and above average health benefits. He knows because he's the leading representative for the teacher's union. Shame on him to use children for self-advancement.

Strengthen laws

We need stronger laws to protect our animals. I was happy to hear that this past week, the dog abuser from Grayslake was convicted. But I'm also saddened to hear the worst sentence he can get is a year in jail. This man, and anyone else who abuses animals, makes me sick. We need stronger laws to protect our pets. If you don't want a pet, simply don't get one. And if you want a pet, love him or her. You'll get it back tenfold.

Missed the parade

I'm calling from Grayslake and want to know what happened to the grade school kids doing their Halloween parade this year? My husband and I have enjoyed that for years. We really missed it!

Pat on the back

I'm from Antioch and want to give the police department a pat on the back. I was standing on the curb at Ben Franklin at Lake Street and a policeman in a car stopped there and waited until I got across the street. I think it was just wonderful of them.

Be responsible

I have two comments: The first one is to "Sad lesson." If people aren't willing to keep their pets in their home, it shouldn't be the responsibility of a motorist who hits them to have to take care of it when they're hurt or killed. People who own the animals need to be responsible. Secondly, here's a new theory for everyone to bounce around: It was stated that O.J. had gone over and slashed Nicole's tires once. Maybe he went over to slash her tires again and saw her with Ron Goldman and went berserk. Maybe it's not first degree murder. Maybe he should've been brought up on third degree murder or manslaughter. Any comments?

No propaganda

I'm calling from Grayslake and was appalled at what my children brought home in their trick-or-treat bags. It was a piece of orange paper with a witch drawn on one side and stated that I should vote yes for School Dist. 46. It was put out by the Education First Committee. I feel that political propaganda does not belong in a child's trick-or-treat bag. What if I were to print up papers stating "Vote for Bob Dole" and gave them out for Halloween along with some candy? This kind of thing does not belong in a child's trick-or-treat bag—period.

The real killer?

To you home detectives, I would like to say O.J. did not kill his wife, Nicole. She had scrapings under her fingernails and the blood samples did not match O.J.'s, hers, or Goldman's blood type. But think about it, he could've had someone else kill them. He had no scratches or bruises on his body when his picture was taken upon returning to L.A. He has an older son that never took the stand in support of his father. Strange, isn't it?

Back to condos

I'd just like to say to all those people who are griping about children's toys in subdivisions, maybe you're really complaining about children. Maybe you should all sulk back to your condos and live there.

No joke

I've recently moved from Fox River Grove to Fox Lake. I was appalled by reading the tragedy article in the Nov. 3 paper, about the kids who thought it was funny to scream to the bus driver that a train was coming. Carol Harper, I hope you took all those brats names down and told their parents so they could be punished.

Discipline is key

Congratulations to Elizabeth Eakens, staff reporter for the Wauconda Leader. She excels over all reporters in all of the news media nationwide because her recent column entitled "School bus safety studied after tragedy" brought to our attention the most important fact pertaining to the cause of this accident. This part should be headlined in broad letters and repeated constantly over the airwave media: the biggest safety distraction is discipline. If parents are concerned about their children's safety on the bus, they need to make sure that their children know how to behave on a school bus. When a driver has to constantly look into the mirror to keep an eye on the kids, they are not watching the road. They cried wolf too many times and no one is fool enough to listen to them. Parents, this is your responsibility to teach your kids how to behave.

Why no ticket?

You park your bus on the railroad tracks, the gate comes crashing down and bangs your bus, the lights are flashing, people are yelling at you to move off the tracks, the kids run down the aisle, and yet the driver says she didn't hear anything. The city says she doesn't get a ticket. So seven kids are killed. Now another guy had his pickup truck hit by a train because he was stupid and was in a place he couldn't get out of. Did he get a ticket?

We caught you

I'm calling to complain about the so-called mother at Wal-Mart in Round Lake Beach recently who was abusing her three-year-old son. Customers had to push her away to keep her from abusing this kid. We want her to know that the people at Wal-Mart found out who you are, your license plate number was taken, and you were reported. We want you to know you've been caught.

Great art show

I attended the "Christmas at the Mansion" art show in Lake Villa. I want to say it felt wonderful, warm, and cozy. I think all the people who were involved did an excellent job. Congratulations to Lake Villa on a great job.

Stop revenge

I'm calling regarding Jim Semmerling, who is the Lake Villa Township highway commissioner. I'm constantly appalled by some of the things he does. We live in Fox Lake Hills subdivision. He's tagged all of our subdivision signs with violation notices, even though our signs are further back off the road, on the other side of trees. In no way of infringing equipment. He hasn't tagged any other subdivision signs but ours. It's tiring that he's so vindictive and discriminatory toward us because when he wouldn't help us out with flood problems, we went and got a community flood grant behind his back, or so he thinks. This vindictiveness is childish. Get on with your job, stop picking on everybody in this subdivision.

No apology needed

The only apology necessary about Grant's volleyball coach is how sad the team would've been without her.

Speak English

I'm calling to ask what's happened to America? I'm tired of having my car fixed at a local body shop only to pick up my car and have Hispanic music on my radio dial. I'm tired of going into a store or a fast food restaurant and dealing with people who can't speak English.

Lipservice is libel

I'm calling in regard to Lipservice. I think it's libel. You don't require people to state their names, so they can say anything they want. You should be careful about what you print because you're putting people's jobs in jeopardy.

Shouldn't vote

Gary Winchester should resign as Lake Zurich trustee. Any trustee moving out of the village should not be in a position to vote for costly programs that will burden the taxpayers when they won't be here to help pay the bills.

Mortgage interest deduction—key to homeownership

For the greater part of this century, the mortgage interest deduction has been an integral part of America's economic and social systems, promoting homeownership and helping to bring its many benefits to families who otherwise might never have owned a home.

As Congress searches for ways to raise revenue and tame the deficit monster, the mortgage interest deduction is in jeopardy. A number of proposals, ranging from completely eliminating the mortgage interest deduction to limiting it to a fixed amount—such as the interest on a $300,000 or $250,000 mortgage—have been proposed and are under consideration on Capitol Hill. And even though it appears unlikely that Congress will address the issue before 1997, it's certainly not too early for smart consumers to start examining the issue and urging members of Congress to retain the mortgage interest deduction as the cornerstone of America's housing policy.

The Congressional Budget office estimates that eliminating the mortgage interest deduction would increase federal revenue by $313 billion over five years. Almost $35 billion would be raised over five years by reducing the amount eligible for deduction to $300,000.

Capping the deduction at $12,000 for a single return, and $20,000 for a joint return and for married couples filing separately, would raise $52.4 billion over five years. Eliminating the interest deduction on second homes would raise $3.2 billion.

At first glance, those are somewhat impressive numbers, but they don't acknowledge the profound effects that such changes would have on the economy and the American people.

First, it is unlikely that capping the deduction would raise the revenues the budget office anticipates. Any shift in tax policy is sure to trigger changes in debt and investment patterns. Wealthy people will either pay down or pay off their mortgages, depriving the Treasury of taxes on the earnings of financial assets liquidated to pay down debt. Those left holding the increased tax bag would be the middle-income home buyers who have stretched their resources to the limit. More importantly, eliminating or capping the mortgage interest deduction would cause property values to plummet. A recent study by DRI-McGraw Hill, a consulting and information firm, found that a flat tax that eliminates the deductions for mortgage interest and property taxes would cause America's 62 million home owners to lose an estimated $1.7 trillion in home equity within one year and would have serious negative implications for the nation's economy.

The DRI analysis found that average home owners would lose 15 percent of their home's value. Housing starts would drop by 22 percent in the year that the tax was imposed, and existing home sales would drop by 19 percent. Construction unemployment would soar, and the economy could be disrupted to the point that a recession would be inevitable. See MORTGAGE page C4

Company offers a slick idea for wintertime fun

SUZIE REED

Staff Reporter

As the first flakes of snow fell on Lake County last week, the thoughts of many turned to winter sports. It is usually not difficult to find a suitable hill for sledding; finding an inexpensive skating rink nearby for recreation or hockey practice is often another matter.

A company in Richmond has the answer to that: NiceRink™.

The simple idea behind a NiceRink™ is much like an above-ground swimming pool. A one-piece three-layer polyethylene sheet is secured to appear as a shallow pond and filled with water when temperatures are below freezing. The concept was developed at Slo-Cote Products Inc., a plastic sheeting company first started in Chicago in 1948 by Irving Stoller. In the early 1970s, he and his son James moved the operation to Richmond. The product line eventually expanded to items such as greenhouse covers, construction plastic and pond liners.

A third generation was represented when Jim joined the business. It was his inspiration as a hockey player that brought about NiceRink™. He talked to people, began running ads, put together a brochure that was mailed to a target market.

"It took off like a rocket," he said. "People don't know how much fun it is to skate outside any more."

The process begins with a telephone consultation in which Stoller solicits details on how big a space is available and whether the yard is level. In this way he can determine how big a piece of plastic is needed and what type frame will work. The area is staked out and the sheet measured a bit larger.

The plastic material comes in three grades, ranging in price from $150 to $277.50 to cover a 30-by-50-foot area.

An uneven surface is no obstacle, it merely requires a higher rim along the area of lower ground. Boards that are 2 feet by 12 feet are often used as a frame. The plastic sheet may also be held in place by hay bales snow banks or even a laid over a natural indentation in the ground.

The installation process takes about a day, said Stoller. Once the bed is secure, it is filled with 4 inches of water. The bright white material prevents any radiant heat from coming in contact with the ice, thereby keeping it colder. The only maintenance necessary is keeping it clear of sticks and snow. Resurfacing the NiceRink is simply a matter of clearing it and spraying it with a garden hose. Patching tape is available to repair tears, he said.

"It's actually less maintenance than a pool, and there are more skate days than swimming days," said Stoller. "The nice thing about it is you can never fall through it—no one can ever drown."

This is the third year for the production of NiceRink™. The material is distributed locally by the manufacturer, by direct mail, and through two distributors in the north and east. Several villages and park districts have realized substantial savings on the cost of labor by using NiceRink, said Stoller. The product can be found in Twin Lakes, Wis., Woodstock, Harvard, Huntley, Lakemoor and Cary. Last year, Stoller said, more than one million square feet of NiceRink was sold. Half that has gone out the door so far this year and the busy season is just beginning.

Insurance/financial planning for women

ALAN FRIEDLANDER

With the deluge of financial information how can you possibly sort through it all and make the right investment decisions?

That was the pressing question raised by successful working women at a series of focus groups conducted by a major U.S. insurance and financial services company. Some women said they simply ignored the messages. Others occasionally responded to offers. All agreed that they would welcome the assistance of a knowledgeable and trustworthy advisor in developing their personal financial strategies.

An administrator at one of the most prestigious universities commented: "I'm confused about the amount of information I am getting. How do you sort through it and come up with a strategy that makes sense?"

Her experience is not uncommon. She told her group, a recent poll of her male and female colleagues indicated that the number one request for assistance from their employer-beyond health care benefits-was for personal financial planning. There are resources available to help you sort out your current and future needs and provide you with a road map for making prudent financial and investment decisions. Here's how to harness these resources to work you.

1. Take a quick inventory of your current situation and future needs.

This need can be a brief accounting of what you have in the way of insurance coverage and investment vehicles to meet your immediate and long-term needs. Once you have sorted through your overall needs, goals, and priorities, you will be better able to define them for an advisor.

2. If your earning power protected with disability insurance?

Most likely you have a health plan where you work or through an association membership. It may also include coverage for a short-term illness or disabling injury. If you don't have a long-term disability policy that continues your income beyond a few months, you will want to explore that option also.

3. What about your retirement and long-term care?

When you are ready to retire, you will need more than a regular social security check to maintain your lifestyle. If your company offers a 401K plan, you may want to maximize your contributions now, then reduce them when your children are college bound.

4. Select an advisor you can work with:

Because most professional men and women are loath to admit they need assistance, they neglect the value of referrals from the people they know and trust. "It's far easier to ask a friend for a referral to a good internist than it is to ask who does her financial planning," this is how one high level professional woman sees it. Even so, a referral from a friend or business associate can be the best route to a knowledgeable, trustworthy financial advisor.

Always know your options and insist on being educated: With so many products available in today's financial market place, you can't possibly know everything that is available. Your advisor should be willing to answer your questions and provide fundamental explanations of how investment and insurance products work. Be sure he or she explains concepts that are unfamiliar to you in terms that you understand.

5. Set up regular checkpoints based on your comfort level:

At the very least, you will want to thoroughly review your financial situation with your advisor once a year. He or she should be willing to touch base more frequently or even meet with you.

The more willing your advisor is to be a partner in your financial decision making, the more likely you are to get a sound, workable plan. Remember, as good as any advisor is, the financial decisions are yours-and your alone-to make.

By taking the time up front to ask key questions and choose the right support person, you increase substantially the odds that your financial and investment decisions will be the right ones.

MURPHY ON REAL ESTATE

Be prepared for closing

There are several reasons to be prepared for a closing, and the most important being the actual transfer of money for property. Unfortunately, many buyers arrive at the closing table only to find out that their final transaction will not happen as planned. This is due simply because they received no instruction as to what is expected.

There are those attorney's that give a list of written instructions for the client to follow. To facilitate a smooth closing, these are a few of the most important items required:

As a buyer, the purchase contract will generally be specific about the number of days in which one must make the mortgage application, and receive an unconditional commitment. If there is some complication, it is necessary to advise the seller in writing within a specified period of time in accordance with the contract so earnest money can be refunded if the contract is to be terminated. If just a simple extension is necessary to secure more time to get the mortgage commitment, the attorney must advise the seller within the time frame specified. Remember that the seller is not required to grant an extension, which can cause other complications. Everyone should be sure to keep an attorney or agent advised of the mortgage in process.

The buyer, needs to obtain an insurance policy for the full insurable value of the new home, effective the date of closing. Most mortgage lenders will require that a paid receipt is furnished for the first full year, naming the lender as an additional insured. Condominiums can require a different lender as an additional insured. Condominiums can require a different type of insurance covering non-common elements, and the owners contents. This is an important item to discuss with an insurance agent to be certain there is adequate coverage. The agent may then need to check with the lender to obtain exact requirements for the proper policy. Lender endorsement is not necessary when cash is being paid for the property.

In most states, cashier's or certified checks made payable to oneself and then endorsed to the seller at the closing are acceptable for payment. Personal checks, bank checks and most money market checks will not be honored. Often title companies will honor other title company checks. Verify with the attorney's office to be absolutely sure the funds provided will be acceptable.

The final figures on just how much the buyer will need to close is not available until the day before closing. There are several final payoffs, service charges and estimations that need to be put on the actual closing statement. It may be necessary to estimate slightly higher in the amount needed to insure full payment. Any overage of funds will be refunded back to the buyer at the closing. Better to have a little more than to be short. Watch the scheduling of the closing as well. When closing on a Wednesday, and the bank is not open plan the day before to secure a certified check. All too often in the last minute craziness before the big move it is easy to forget the most important step in a closing—the money.

With few exceptions, when there is a lender involved, the buyer's will need to attend the closing. There are endless documents that need to be signed and explained at length. Power of attorney is generally not acceptable, but is possible under certain circumstances, if the lender agrees. It is strongly suggested that the buyer's attend the closing so that the mortgage, survey, tax pro-rations and other details are clearly explained by the attorney for better understanding by the buyer. Possession holdouts, rental credits and other details may need to be clarified at the closing table.

The best part of the closing is the end. When all the papers have been endorsed and the keys are handed over, the buyer walks away as the new proud homeowner.

Mortgage—

Furthermore, the 15 percent figure is an average. Some home owners—particularly those who own high-cost homes or who live in areas with high property taxes—could see their home equity drop by much more than 15 percent. And even though starts and sales would eventually return to close-to-baseline levels, the loss of home equity would be permanent, not temporary.

Such a decline in property values would devastate the economy and individual home owners. Mortgage loan defaults and foreclosures would surge, some families would lose their homes, and financial institutions would suffer heavy losses. Furthermore, the property tax bases of local governments nationwide would be harmed, and property tax rates would rise.

Many people believe that Congress will never tamper with the mortgage interest because it is an integral part of the nation's social and economic systems. But the deduction is no longer sacrosanct. Several years ago, Congress capped the amount eligible for interest deduction. It can, and may, further limit or eliminate it. The threat is very real.

America's home builders support the mortgage interest deduction and urge all home owners—and potential home owners—to do the same. Homeownership not only provides a place to live and measure of financial security; it strengthens the nation's communities, encourages participation in the political process, and provides a sense of security to America's families. We cannot afford to let it slip away.—by WILLIAM MAYBROOK, president Home Builders Assn. of Greater Chicago

Experts reveal hottest features for home buyers

What's hot? What's not? A knowledge of changes in home buyers preferences can be valuable information for home owners who are preparing to sell their homes. Insight into the most popular features is also useful for those who are not planning to move but who wish to make continuing improvements in their homes with special emphasis on areas that most enhance the investment value.

A recent informal survey of some of the real estate experts at The Prudential Preferred Properties focused on areas that are most important to today's home buyers. Advances in the new construction industry are affecting buyer preferences, but even vintage homes can be updated or enhanced to appeal to today's buyers, real estate professionals agree.

The popularity of certain design features is driving the purchasing decisions of '90's home buyers, said Ed Wlodarczyk, manager of the Glenview office of The Prudential Preferred Properties.

"People today are spending more time at home and they want their homes to reflect the newest in comfort and convenience," said Wlodarczyk. "We have reached the point where location, location and location are no longer the three most important factors affecting the value of real estate. Today, condition has overtaken location as the crucial factor."

"The five most popular design features for buyers of resale homes today are: Modern kitchens; light, bright and open spaces; updated baths; ample closets and storage; special '90's amenities."

According to Frank Larson, manager of the Glen Ellyn office, step-saving kitchens which make efficient use of space are the most important design feature with buyers today.

"Kitchen with smart plans that make the best possible use of space are highly desirable," said Larson. "Center islands, light colors and natural light wood cabinets are popular. Although kitchen improvements are among the most expensive that home owners can make to their homes, it is possible to keep costs down by selecting materials of good quality but less than top-of-the-line."

There are many aspects to creating the light and airy look which is characteristic of modern architecture.

According to Mary Ann Falkenberg, Palatine branch manager, kitchens and family rooms which are open and flow into each other are very popular.

"When these rooms become one large area, the traffic pattern is more convenient for family living with small children and it creates the open feeling that buyers are seeing in newly-constructed homes," said Falkenberg. "Other ways to brighten your home include painting rooms in light colors. Dark wood is out of style and lighter woods are preferred by buyers today. Decorative borders or stenciling have replaced wallpaper which covers entire walls."

The home owner who can add space to an existing bathroom can make a major improvement, according to Falkenberg.

"Depending on the floor plan, it is sometimes possible to add space to a bathroom by removing a wall and taking space from another area," said Falkenberg. "This can make a substantial difference if the floor plan of your home is flexible."

If such a change is not feasible, new materials can give even a smaller bathroom a luxurious look according to Larson.

An increased emphasis on walk-in closets and extra storage is evident in new homes, and today's buyers are seeking large closets, three-car garages and basements. Increasing storage space in an older home is not always easy, unless a room addition is being planned.

"Sometimes, a walk-in, cedar-lined closet can be added in the basement, or an attractive wardrobe can be set in a corner," said Stein.

Advances in architecture and new amenities can be added to older homes, which can result in the best of both worlds—state-of-the-art amenities blended with the charm of a classic, traditional home. Popular special features with today's buyers include: hardwood floors, 6-panel doors, decks, 9 foot or volume ceilings for new additions or second floor rooms, natural woodwork.

Home buyers who are planning to make home improvements and would like expert advice can turn to their real estate professionals, Wlodarczyk suggested.

Trouble brewing in the wings for successful farm family

NICK J. BROWN

Success in any endeavor usually means greater wealth, greater freedom, and a more full life style.

For the farm family, a successful career in farming may mean a more complicated and expensive transition to the next generation and difficulty in the continued management of the farm. Generation transition

How will you pass the operating farm to your children and grandchildren? The problem can be somewhat lessened by Section 2032A of the Internal Revenue Code concerning special use valuation. This allows a lowered valuation on a portion of your farm real estate.

However, in order for children and grandchildren to buy that farm and provide an income for you, they may be burdened with a great deal of debt. This is the ultimate problem in successful farming.

Although not true all the time, farming success and the ability to survive for years is inversely related to the amount of debt you are carrying on land and equipment. The higher the interest payments, the greater the risk of financial reversal.

The successful transition to the next generation can be achieved through proper planning and by moving as much of your assets out of probate as possible as well as by providing the liquidity for children to purchase their parents' farm.

As parents reduce the amount of activities they have on the farm and want to pass those burdens and responsibilities to the children, the necessity occurs to split farming up among several family members.

With proper leveraging of tax liquidity plans and repositioning assets to lifetime annuities for senior family members, such a plan can be successfully achieved. Nursing home burden

We have seen many families plan well but they did not protect against the long term care burden for older family members. Check the Medical Assistance Laws of your state to make sure that a lien for medical bills and nursing care will not prevent a successful transfer of your farm.

By considering all of these issues prior to the actual event, you can save tens of thousands of dollars as well as provide for the successful transition of your productive farming operation to the next family generation. Contact your financial planner and attorney to get this process started.

How To Survive
The Job Search
By Nancy Sakol

Q: Dear...Search: I am writing to you as a Personnel Director with (name withheld) Corporation. I am writing to address the problem with resumes that I receive that are more like a novel. I am in a position whereby I am inundated with resumes of every sort whether they be clerical, technical, mid and upper-management. For each position
I have open, I may receive as many as 200 resumes on each. Why do people feel it necessary to go on and on about work experience that took place 25 years ago? Do people realize that on a resume "less is more"? I can often nod out while reading these. After awhile it's just another piece of paper. Not to mention the things that people put on a resume that have absolutely no business being there because of discrimination. Please address this situation so that others like me can give a fair shot to all. H.D. - Lincolnshire

A: Dear H.D. This problem usually starts with a person's need to want to expound on their experience hoping it will aid in their hire.
Another reason we find a person does this is because they feel they have a lack of work experience and therefore feel the need to make themselves look more important than they are, or need to be. You are correct...on a resume "less IS more". A person needs to establish an objective that fits the position yet keep themselves open enough so that their objective doesn't suggest an area desired, different than the position they are applying for. For instance, if the position that you are applying for is for outside sales, do not set your objective to read that of an administrative assistant. A person does not necessarily have to go 25 years into their past work history to get the point across. For instance, if in 1968 you worked for a local retailer and in 1970 you worked in a fast food restaurant and in 1995 you are a degreed technical engineer, feel secure enough to know that you need not take up the space on a resume for information that (while it may not seem trivial to you), gets a few chuckles in the personnel department. You can merely state 1968-1975 - Retail establishments. The crux of your resume should be to the point. Do now however, go on and on about various skills such as: tape dispenser, fax machine, stamp machine, copier and such. Show me a six-year-old who can't operate these items. Personal information. I can not stress to you how important it is to keep your resume free from things such as your marital status, height, weight, birth date and year, physical condition and amount of children you have as dependents. These can be discrimination factors and are not acceptable...DON'T DO IT! Try and keep your resume to ONE page. And to H.D. in Lincolnshire - I hope this helps to keep you from nodding out!

Note: Nancy Sakol is a licensed personnel professional and President of Superior Personnel in Gurnee.
Letters can be sent to Nancy at 4949 Grand Ave.,

PET OF THE WEEK

Mack

"Mack" is a three year old, black and tan husky/shepherd mix. This neutered male has a barrel full of desirable qualities, that make him extra special. Among them, Mack is housebroken and good with older children. He enjoys the companionship of other dogs, and has had some obedience training. Although he is a housepet, Mack is a very playful dog, and enjoys a big fenced yard where he can romp and interact with his favorite people. This handsome fellow has a beautiful short coat with attractive markings. Alert, eager to learn, bright and obedient, Mack has a calm personality. Taken altogether, Mack is one terrific dog and he needs a loving home. Mack is up to date on his shots, and has been waiting eagerly, for someone to love since February of 1995, in Case 11.

Cash $55 donation includes free spay/neuter, collar, tag, leash, first shots, follow-up care, and more.

Orphans of the Storm is located at 2200 Riverwoods Rd., Deerfield. Hours are 11 a.m. - 5 p.m., seven days a week. Call (708) 945-0235 for further information.

AFFIRMED

Beautiful, elegant, original, functional. These are only some of the adjectives that can be used to describe the one of a kind Affirmed. This 3727 square foot floor design is one that combines gracious living with a simplicity of movement throughout the entire home. The interior charm is enhanced by a handsome exterior that blends brick, wood siding and glass with a unity that will be appreciated by everyone.

A semicircular front porch, flanked by stately columns, leads you into a generous entry area. To the right is a half-bath and coat closet for the convenience of your guests. Further along this short hallway are two doors. One leads to a home office, where you can set up your PC with the latest software. The other door takes you into a huge master suite that is truly remarkable. There is room here for a complete bedroom set and a couch, or a couple of reclining chairs. An alcove, with windows all around, is a perfect place to sit and admire the view or savor a good book. Other amenities include a very large walk-in closet, extra storage, twin vanities, and a private bathroom with spa.

The living and dining rooms merge, giving you a spacious area to entertain friends and family. The S-shaped back wall is completely windowed, admitting all the available sunlight and permitting an unobstructed look at the surrounding landscape. A corner fireplace makes it cozy, and built-in china hutch displays your finest dinnerware. Speaking of entertaining! How about the rumpus room/theater? With the windows everywhere, the two way fireplace and entertainment center, many enjoyable hours will be spent here.

The up-to-date kitchen is sure to please. Two walk-in pantries, island cooktop and separate freezer are some of the features that will make meal preparation less of a chore.

The remaining two bedrooms are actually mini-suites. Each is good-sized and has ample closet space, vanity and private bath. Across the hall is a roomy utility room with sink and built-in ironing board. Conveniently located by the two-car garage, soiled shoes and clothing can be dropped off here before entering the house.

CLC Lady Lancers hoping depth brings more 'W's

STEVE PETERSON

Staff Reporter

Numbers on the roster are already on the upswing.

College of Lake County women's basketball Coach Don Zeman is hoping numbers on the scoreboard will follow in a similar mode.

"We are very optimistic. We have 10 players and that gives us much more of a comfort level at practices," Zeman said of his team's prospects for the 1995-96 season.

The 10 is almost double what CLC had last year, and more than double the number for a few injury-riddled games.

Two players are back from that 4-19 season looking to gain respect for the Grayslake junior college. They are Nicole Pollard, a 6-foot center, and 5-3 guard Ria Cruz.

"We hope Nicole increases her points per game. She was one of our leading rebounders at eight rebounds a game. Cruz did not see a lot of playing time last year, but she has worked hard on her ball handling and that is real noticeable," Zeman said.

CLC was to start the year Saturday at Waukesha, but gym space forced delay of that game. The Lancers host South Suburban at 1 p.m. in the Nov. 18 opener.

Many freshmen from varying backgrounds are looking to contribute.

Katie Klein is a 5-6 guard from Grant High. "She is one of our toughest defenders, but she has good offensive skills," Zeman said.

Kenya Mason may be a familiar name to some — she was a standout for the 1992 North Chicago High team. "She is ready to pick up where she left off with the Warhawks," Zeman said of the 5-7 forward.

Stephanie Sofie is a 5-1 guard from Grayslake. "She is our strongest three-point shooter and she has worked hard over the summer and it has shown," the coach commented.

Tashia Byrd is a 5-11 center from Waukegan who could help the rebounding effort.

Heather Howes regained the desire to play hoops a few years after her high school career ended in Waukegan. "She has been a real defensive tiger for us," Zeman said.

Frozone Hayes, a 5-6 guard from Kenosha, Wis., and Tracia DeWitt, a 5-7 forward from Green Bay, Wis., are also returning to the hardwood.

Heather Ronkoske, a former soccer player at Antioch High School, is trying her fortunes as a 5-4 guard.

"We hope to be .500 in our non-conference games and finish in the top half of the Skyway Conference," said Zeman, coaching in his eighth year at CLC.

The Lancers have a goal in mind as they prepare for that season opener against South Suburban.

"There is a lot more hunger in this group. They want to earn back that respect," Zeman said.

Defense, Thul's shooting pace Carmel

It is true in season openers as well as sectional final games. Defense not only wins championships, but games as well.

Carmel High's team proved the importance of defense as it held Zion-Benton to 8 fourth-quarter points in a 59-44 win on Tuesday.

"It was a nice start. Defense and the fourth quarter did it," Carmel Coach Larry Whittier said.

Tina Thul, back from shoulder surgery which cut in half her sophomore season, scored 16 points. Senior Colleen Krombach had 12 points.

Whittier said Zion was hurting the Corsairs with lob passes underneath, but second-half adjustments took care of that.

Krombach also contributed 12 rebounds and had 6 assists.

Carmel plays McHenry in the first game of the Mundelein tournament at 6 p.m. Nov. 17.

Variety proves spice of life at CLC basketball tourney

STEVE PETERSON

Staff Reporter

The season-opening College of Lake County men's basketball tournament offered a little something for all types of basketball fans.

If you like your defense, CLC played enough of it to gain two wins in three games, gaining victories over the Judson junior varsity and Truman, but losing to tourney champ Parkland.

If you like your offense, there was the comeback from a double digit deficit against Judson, the 123-point effort by Parkland against CLC and a 104-61 CLC win over Truman.

If you like slam dunks, CLC's Bob Swanson provided a few.

"It looks like the guard position is pretty solid," CLC Coach Bruce Smith said.

"We played well the second game today. We got set up in our offense," CLC's Joel Dangel said after a 17-point effort to lead the team against Truman.

Dangel's effort was complimented by 16 points from Rodney Kindle, who sparked the win in the opener; Mike Tschanz, from Antioch, had 14 points; Theron Davis sneaked in with 12 points and Swanson and Pete Ferguson had 10 each.

"We need to get our offense organized better. In the pre-season, we mostly worked on defense," Smith said.

The assignments do not get any easier. CLC faces DuPage Nov. 16. The Lancers are back home for a clash with South Suburban at 3 p.m. Nov. 18 in Grayslake.

"DuPage won the region last year and are supposed to be better this year. We snuck up and beat them last year, but they will be ready for us this year," Smith said.

CLC (2-1) pulled away from Judson after the first half. An 8-0 run gave the home team a lead it would not give up. A three-pointer by Dave Bumblis, a Mundelein High grad, put the home team ahead 53-21 at intermission.

The Lancers opened up an 82-58 lead when Tschanz hit a baseline jumper at the 3:15 mark in the fourth quarter. John Michealeau, a Woodland Middle School graduate who played his high school basketball in Burlington, Wis., scored the final two baskets and finished with eight points.

CLC was able to stay with mighty Parkland for five minutes early on. The Champaign-based school went on a 15-5 run and CLC never recovered in a 125-79 loss.

One bright spot was a 16-point performance by Grayslake grad John Parr.

"At Grayslake, I was the go-to guy. Now I have to play my role - play defense and rebound," said Parr, one of many freshmen on the CLC roster.

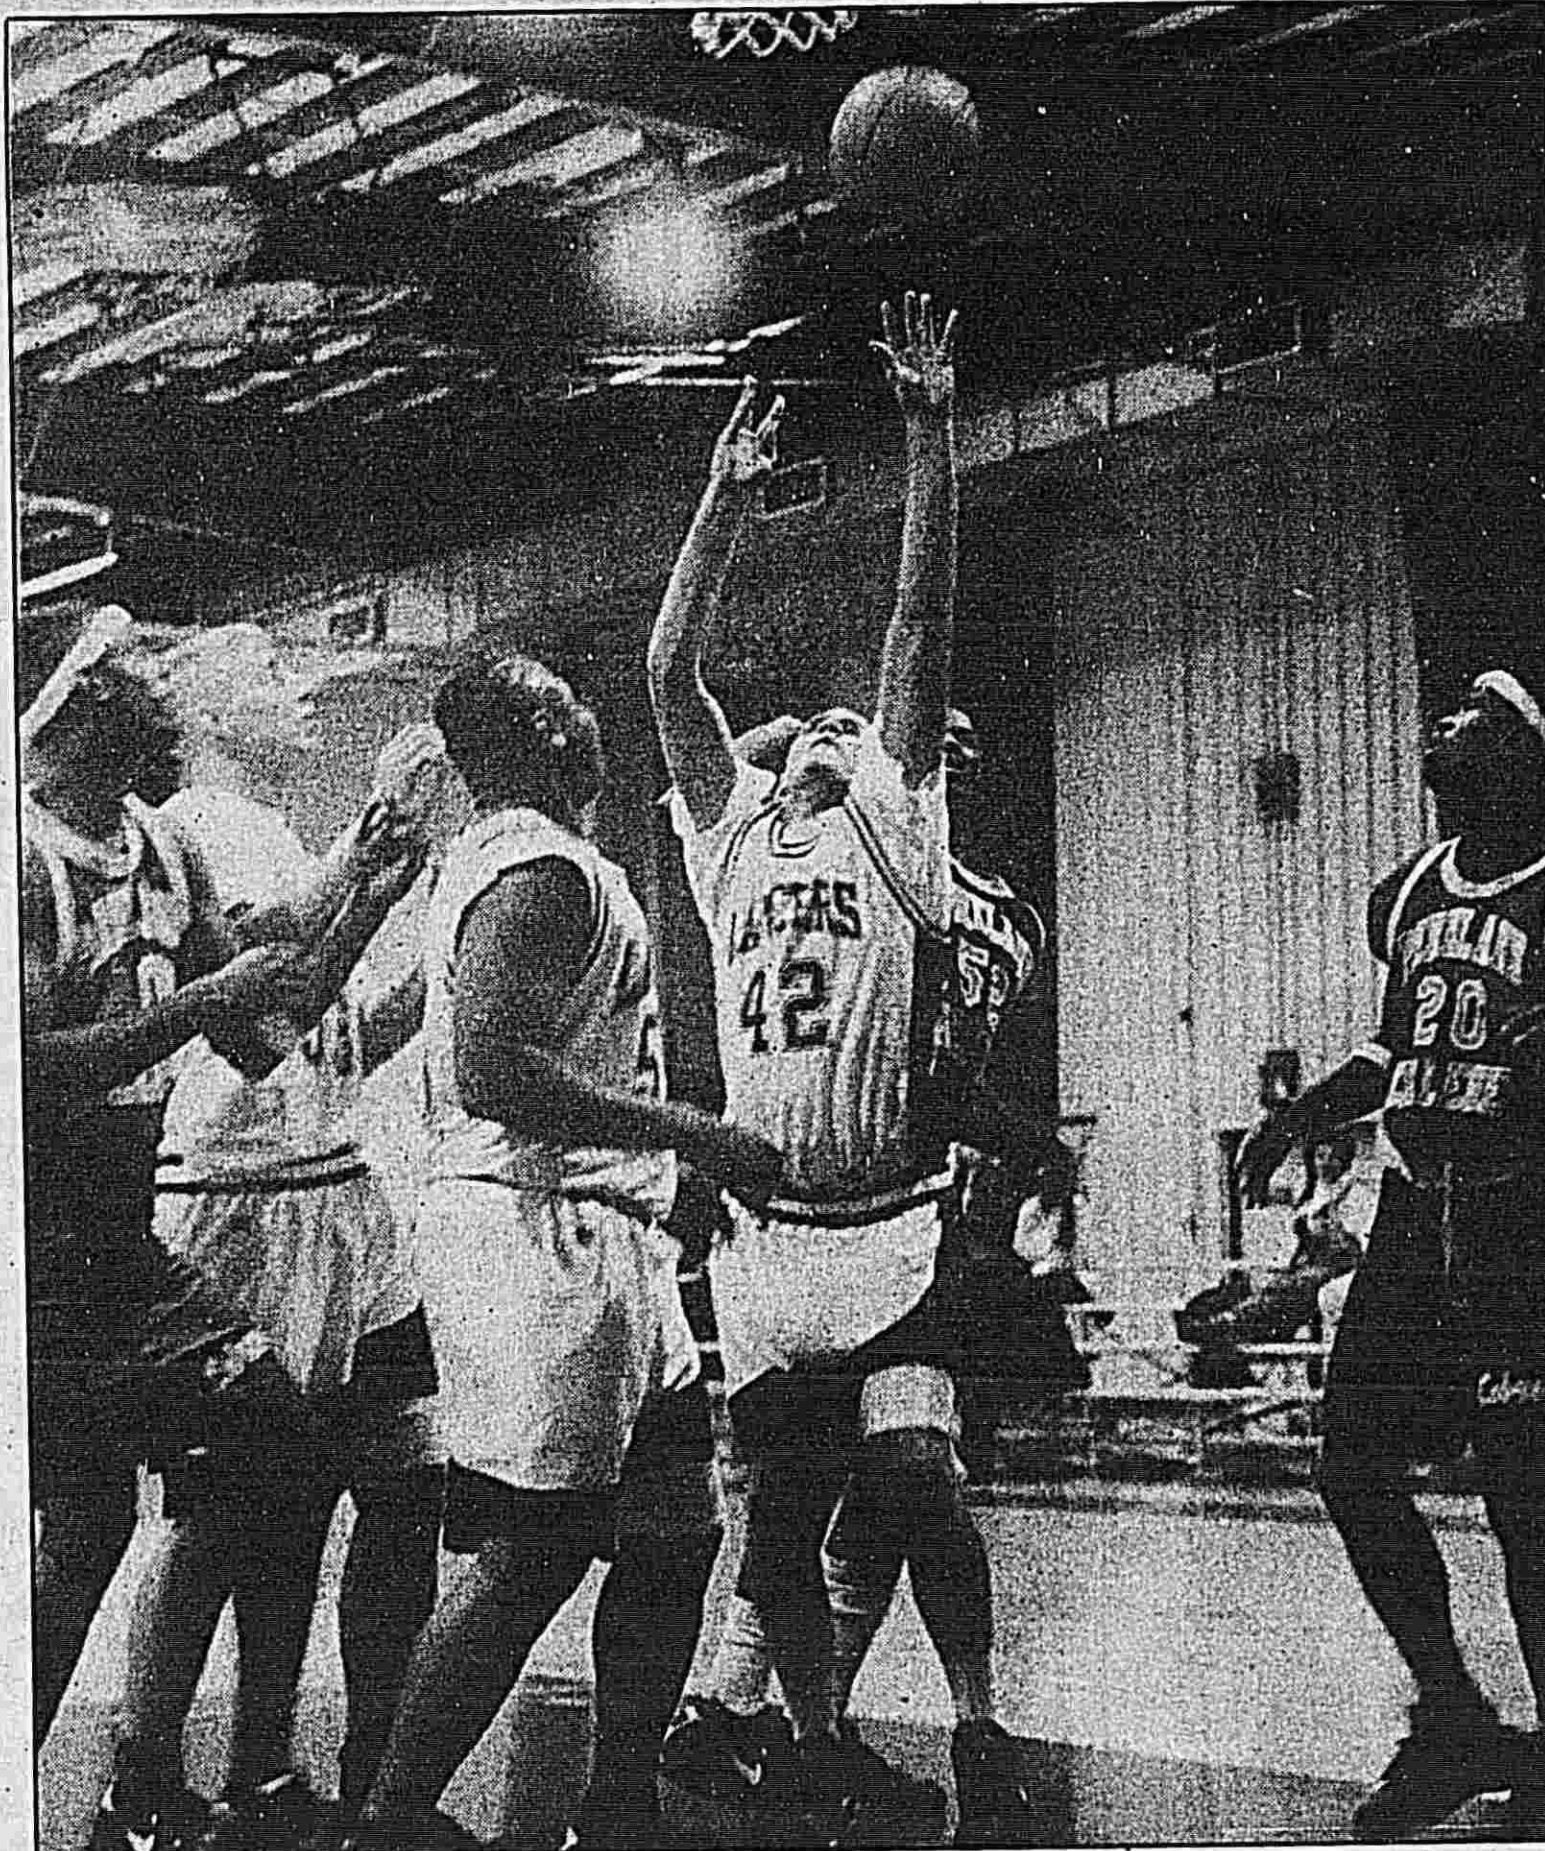

"Parkland is an excellent team. They were the class of the tournament," Smith said.

CLC dominated from the start against Truman, a former league foe.

Ferguson connected for one of the team's nine three-pointers. The Truman coach called three timeouts in two minutes as CLC executed a rare seven-point possession.

Kurt Filiatreault, the only sophomore on the CLC squad, had a tip-in basket and sank a free throw. Ferguson made one of two free throws on a technical foul. Dangel then connected on a three-point basket.

Swanson had a tip-in followed by a slam dunk as the CLC lead reached 40 points.

John Parr of College of Lake County puts up a shot against Parkland. Parr, a Grayslake High graduate, scored 16 points but CLC lost. CLC won two of three games at its season-opening tournament. Fighting for rebounding position are: Theron Davis of CLC, Dave Bumblis of CLC and Parkland's Demetrius Liberty, David Freeman and Danam Hills. # DAN RAMAGE

Who cares about the pros when your kid is hitting over .400

The World Series has come and gone. It's a pity so many people didn't even notice.

I noticed. My name is Dan Ramage, and I'm your new sports editor. Let me tell you a little bit about myself — I like sports. All of them. Get two guys with marbles hunkered down over a circle drawn in the dirt and I'll watch them play. In a particular mood I may even describe the match in prose that recalls legendary sportswriter Grantland Rice ("Under the iron sky they knelt before the ring, flexing sinewy thumbs, eyes as cold and hard as the aggies they were about to shoot.") But more than any other sport, I like baseball.

I know, I know — The players and owners are greedy, it costs too much to take your kids to the ballpark, arrogant has-beens want $20 for an autograph. But baseball is more than that. Baseball lives apart from the crass commercialism that surrounds it on the pro level.

Baseball is about the little leaguer who earnestly runs out every foul ball. It's about the high school girl with a rocket arm that takes your town to the state championship. It's about the guy in the park district league who sells insurance by day and steals bases by night.

Which brings me to the point. The Lakeland newspapers aren't concerned with pro shenanigans. We don't care what Frank Thomas is making this year. We're concerned with sports in the context that they relate to you. If Frank Thomas signs a 50-year contract for $13 trillion on the same day your 11-year-old neighbor wins the little league triple crown, you won't read about Frank Thomas in a Lakeland newspaper. But you will hear what it was like for your neighbor to hit eight homers in a single game.

Our sports priorities can be summed up in one word: "local." That goes for all sports, from prep contests to pee-wee soccer to coed volleyball at the YMCA to sailing, biking, golf and all the other sports that happen here.

My goal as sports editor for the Lakeland newspapers is to fill the pages with sports, to be sure. But they'll be stories about your teams, your family, your neighbors, your schools, your community. If you want to read about Frank Thomas there are a variety of sources. If you want to read about the people that matter to you, we're your source.

As readers, you can have an impact on what you read by letting us know of events happening in your town that you'd like to read about. Try as we might, we don't hear about every event, and tips from readers are most welcome.

And rest assured that if your neighbor boy goes on to sign a 50-year, $13 trillion contract, we'll tell you all about that. Maybe even in prose that recalls Grantland Rice.

National bowling championship returns to Harper College lanes

The $300,000 Brunswick World Tournament of Champions will return to William Rainey Harper College Athletic center in Palatine for its nationally televised arena bowling finals, to be broadcast live on Saturday, April 27, 1996, on ABC-TV beginning at 2 p.m.

The arena seating has been reconfigured to accommodate 4,000 spectators; last April's event drew over 3,000 fans.

"Harper College was a great venue last year and the new seating arrangement that will allow us to accommodate more fans made it a natural choice to return," said Adrian Sakowicz, director of public relations for the Brunswick Corp. and tournament chairman. "The fact that we had to turn people away demonstrates how enthusiastic Chicago bowling fans are about this tournament, and we want to accommodate even more of them next year."

The tournament will begin on April 21 with international qualifying at Brunswick Deer Park Lanes in Lake Zurich. Five international players will join 59 PBA champions to complete the field of 64 players who will compete for the renowned Tournament of Champions title. Regular tournament competition will begin at Brunswick Deer Park Lanes on April 24 at 10 a.m. After 48 games of qualifying and match play, the top five players will advance to the nationally televised finals at Harper College Athletic Center.

The Brunswick World Tournament of Champions will also feature the Reichert Cup, pitting a team of international players against a U.S. team comprised of PBA champions in individual, doubles and team events. The U.S. will defend its 1995 title beginning with opening Reichert Cup competition on Monday, April 22, at Brunswick Deer Park Lanes. The team finals will be held prior to the ABC-TV telecast on Saturday, April 27, at the Harper College Athletic Center.

Technology's impact growing in ice fishing fun

STEVE PETERSON
Staff Reporter

The days of walking out onto a safe stretch of ice, securing a magic fishing hole and hoping the fish cooperate may be a thing of the past.

The technological age continues to find its way in to the world of ice fishing. Enter the fishing simulator - a computerized device which made its debut at a Lake County Fairgrounds Ice Fishing show. The show was sponsored by Custom Jigs and Spins, Inc., Trout Pond by Henry's Sports and Marine and Mid West Outdoors.

"This is its first show in the Midwest. You fish as though it is virtual reality, and it gives you a score just like you were reeling a fish in," Dave Kranz, owner of Dave's Bait, Tackle and Taxidermy, said.

Sunday afternoon scores - for a price of $3 - ranged as high as 2,960 points. The machine itself costs $6,000, so many fishing enthusiasts may not have it in their homes. But they may soon go to the Crystal Lake store to compete in leagues.

"I will definitely be there each week," John Syre said after his 90-second turn.

The ice fishing show was held for three days with a variety of speakers, equipment and tips.

"You start out with the smaller lakes and work your way to the bigger lakes," Dave Genz said of the ice fishing strategy. "Ice fishing is more family oriented."

Genz's Minnesota firm manufactures a new two-seat tent. "We are on the third revision of the one-man tent," he said.

Tom Mazur, show coordinator, said 94 percent of the vendors on hand were back from last year.

Those who did venture to

'I will definitely be there each week.'
—John Syre

Grayslake on a chilly weekend could have learned the fishing tips on several Chain 'O Lakes fishing spots, heard from Mazur, Lance Joaquin, Debbie Compton and Mick Thill.

Hansen explained fishing is not that difficult, that success can be obtained by paying attention to the basics and a few little tricks. An electrician by trade with United Airlines, he has already found time to fish in Upper Michigan.

The South of the Border Muskies Club was on hand. Dave Piktel, a vice president, said the club has more than 200 members. Its highlight this year was a successful fishing derby.

"There was absolutely no pressure to catch fish. We stress each person gets a prize. The purpose is to get the kids fishing. We believe if you teach someone fishing, you take them away from drugs," said Piktel, a 12-year club member.

The club meets the third Wednesday each month at the Antioch Moose Lodge.

Next November, when the ice fishing successes are a thing of the past, Mazur plans another, larger show.

"We will have two buildings next year," he said.

Harrison, Curtis garner all-conference accolades

A player new to her position and a freshman earned all-Skyway Conference honors for College of Lake County's women's volleyball team.

Stacey Harrison and Carrie Curtis earned the honors as the team was selected by conference coaches.

"Stacey was a pleasure to coach for two years. She was all tournament N4C-Skyway and she was just a natural athlete," CLC Coach Sue Garcia said.

Harrison, a Carmel High grad who once served for 15 straight points, took up the role as a setter.

The other all-conference player is Curtis, an Antioch grad and a middle hitter for CLC.

"We could always count on her to keep the ball in play. She was a real leader," Garcia said of the freshman.

CLC had a basically freshmen team which finished 14-33-3.

In addition to Harrison, other sophs included Heather Miller, Carey Petriciag and Rachel Berthumel.

Berthumel, a Wauconda High graduate, was a backrow player and defender. "She definitely improved," Garcia commented.

Miller, a Mundelein High grad, worked hard at the middle hitter position, the coach said.

Jodi Botsford, a freshman from Warren High, was a defensive specialist. "She was a leader and had a chance to play all around," Garcia said.

Jenny Vosburgh of Mundelein, was a 5-11 middle hitter.

Another up and coming player is Jessica Rodriguez, a Grant High graduate.

Stephanie DeGroot, a freshman from Grayslake, was the team's best server. "She had a float serve that was just a killer and she came in and played back row defense," Garcia said.

Round Lake grad Jenny Dennecke specializes on the weakside and puts up a strong block, according to the coach.

Shannon Davis teamed with Harrison as a CLC setter. "We could go with a 5-1 lineup and be very well off," Garcia said.

CLC won a post-season match with Olive-Harvey before losing to McHenry 15-5, 15-13, 15-8.

The year was a banner one for the Skyway as McHenry, Elgin and Moraine Valley finished two, three and four in Illinois.

"We could not catch a break. We worked hard, but always lost the close ones," Garcia said.

Vikings game frozen out

The bitter cold of Saturday claimed at least one sports event.

The Lake County Vikings were scheduled to battle the Sangamon County Tigers in the first round of the semi-professional football national tournament, but the Tigers found the single-digit wind chills to be too much.

Vikings coach Russ Kraly said it is "50-50" if the rescheduled game will be played at Round Lake High School. He is waiting for word about the next opponent.

The Viking were Midwest Football League champs with a 10-1 record.
